HICKMAN TRIAL TENTATIVELY SET FOR JANUARY 25 BY STATE

PROSECUTION WILL OPPOSE EFFORTS TO DELAY FIEND TRIAL

Walsh Will Request Delay—Sanity Probe Continues

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—William Edward Hickman will go on trial for the kidnaping and murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker, on January 25, the scheduled date, if the efforts of District Attorney Asa Keyes and his associates prevail.

Determination to zealously fight all attempts on the part of the defense to have the trial postponed was today the response of the state to reports that Jerome Walsh, Hickman's chief counsel, would ask for a deferral of the trial in order to allow him more time in taking depositions. Walsh is at present engaged in interviewing witnesses in Kansas City and Arkansas.

The district attorney's office here, when apprised of reports that the Kansas City attorney intended to ask for a postponement, declared that it would sharply oppose any defense move in the direction of continuing the trial.

Walsh is obtaining evidence from Hickman's boyhood acquaintances and friends of the Hickman family which, it is understood, he intends to use to establish hereditary insanity. When the youthful kidnaper-slayer was arraigned, Walsh asked that the trial date be set several days later than Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy was willing to grant.

After the arraignment the attorney expressed dissatisfaction over Judge Hardy's refusal to allow him more time for the preparation of his case.

Dr. Frank M. Mikels, state psychiatrist, upon whose testimony, it is believed, the prosecution will largely rely, today continued to conduct his sanity tests in Hickman's cell. Thus far, the expert reported, no indication or either hereditary insanity or dementia praecox has appeared in the course of his observations.

Hickman's spasmodic resistance to the efforts of alienists has given way to willingness. He answers all questions asked by the brain specialists.

WILL PROBE SANITY OF YOUNG SLAYER

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Jan. 18.—Doctors C. H. Kale, of Neffs, R. H. Wilson, of Martins Ferry, and J. B. Martin, of St. Clairsville, today were named by Common Pleas Judge Cowen to act as a sanity commission to examine Andy Dyken, 15, under indictment on a first degree murder charge.

The date of the lunacy hearing has not been set. Dyken confessed that he killed his mother with a shotgun after she scolded him for failing to attend school. He also seriously wounded his father, Nick Dyken, and says he intended to kill him, rather than his mother.

PAY ROLL PADDING WILL BE PROBED

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 18.—The evidence in the investigation of the alleged Ohio National Guard pay roll padding will be heard by federal grand jury which was to convene here today.

Fourteen officers of the National Guard, from corporals to majors were charged with "padding payrolls" after an investigation last winter by William V. Harper, head of the local government's secret service.

DETROIT, Mich.—A free marriage license is waiting for some one in Wayne County. The one who gets it will be the first woman to admit she is dragging a "Leap Year" husband to the altar. Thomas P. Farrell, county clerk, made this offer in an attempt to encourage women to help reduce bachelorhood. "They can do it," Farrell said. "All they need is a little encouragement."

FORMER POLICEMAN ADMITS HE STARTED WASHINGTON FIRES

One-Time Psychopathic Patient Blames Sudden Impulse

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—John J. Fisher, an ex-policeman, who has confessed, authorities said, to starting two of the seven major fires which yesterday swept the city, explained today that he was compelled to set the blazes by an "irresistible impulse."

He was formerly a psychopathic patient at Walter Reed army hospital.

Fisher withstood more than twelve hours of grilling questioning before he confessed, police disclosed. His confession was given to police in a written statement.

The confession stated that Fisher, after he heard the engines rushing to the Woolworth fire, the first, he followed them in his automobile and became obsessed with an impulse to "set fire to something."

He went to the McDowell Brothers' feed store in Eckington Place, Fisher added, and set fire to the place by dropping matches over the first floor of the building.

After the fire was well under way, Fisher said he drove to 14th and W Streets and, breaking through a window, set ablaze the Lank Woodworking company plant by again throwing matches on the floor.

Fisher was not sure about the other fires because, his confession said, he was in a stupor from time to time from his "maniacal craze" and does not remember his movements.

A revised estimate by authorities today placed the damage from all the fires at about $100,000. During the excitement of yesterday they placed the loss at $500,000.

GOVERNOR DONAHEY ISSUES APPEAL FOR HELP FOR CHILDREN

Coal Mine Regions Destitute Said In Proclamation.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—An appeal to Ohioans to "come to the rescue of destitute childhood," especially in the coal mining regions of this state, and to contribute food, clothing and money is contained in a proclamation issued today by Governor Vic Donahey.

"Within the borders of the state of Ohio at the present exists a condition of distress and suffering which must be called to the attention of the people of the commonwealth," the governor's proclamation read.

"More, or less, unemployment exists everywhere. In most communities, the more fortunate are able to provide relief for those in need," continued the governor. "In other communities, however, especially in the coal-mining regions, the financial resources have become exhausted, with the result that many children are at the point of starvation for want of food and suffering for lack of clothing."

"The right, or wrong, of the coal strike does not alter the fact that the children of indigent parents must be helped. They are the hardest hit victims of the industrial strife and they are the most important to the future welfare of our state. Under-nourished children, inadequately clothed against the rigors of winter, are bound to become crippled members of society. They are not responsible for the industrial disputes of their parents, but, by reason of their helplessness, are the first and foremost sufferers. The hand of justice to children beckons to the entire citizenry of Ohio."

"As governor of Ohio, therefore, I deem it my duty to issue this proclamation to call upon the people of our state to come to the rescue of destitute childhood. Money is the greatest need. Food is needed for the purchase of milk and other food essentials to the health of growing children."

Governor Donahey announced that he had directed the Ohio National Guard to serve as the receiving and disbursing agency. He stated that all moneys received will be deposited with, and disbursed by, Bert B. Buckley, state treasurer, and that all receipts and disbursements will be audited by Joseph T. Tracy, state auditor, who will submit a full accounting and report.

"The expenses of administration will be paid entirely by the state of Ohio," Donahey declared. "Every dollar received will go directly to the relief of needy children in the mining fields and wherever children are found to be suffering for want of the necessities of life."

"The Ohio National Guard is a splendid organization, well officered, competent and equipped to render peace-time service, as well as to preserve the peace and dignity of the state in times of threatened disorder," the governor's proclamation stated. "Officers of the Guard have been stationed in the mining fields for some months. They have helped to maintain order. They are familiar with conditions."

"The forms and methods of relief will vary to meet the needs of particular situations and vicinities. In some instances, we anticipate the necessity of establishing restaurants where children may receive at least one good meal a day. The department of health of Ohio is ready to conduct clinics and furnish nursing service where such is imperative."

Donahey said persons wishing to donate commodities, such as food or clothing, or both, may send them to the nearest Ohio National Guard armory. Those not living within easy reach of an armory may send their donations to the state arsenal here. Persons desiring to contribute money, the governor said, may make their checks, drafts and money orders payable to the "adjutant general of Ohio, custodian of children's relief fund."

SUES RAILROAD

SANDUSKY, O., Jan. 18.—Claiming that he lost part of his left foot in saving his pet dog from injury under a freight train, Geo. Beach, a minor, through his mother has sued the New York Central Railroad Co. for $30,000 in common pleas court here, it was learned today.

The accident occurred near Vermilion last summer, it was said.

BELIEVE GIRL WAS SLAIN

FRANCES ST. J. SMITH

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 18.—Working on the theory that Miss Frances St. John Smith, New York heiress, and eighteen-year-old Smith College freshman, was slain by a maniac, state police today began an intensive search in this vicinity.

State authorities believe that the solution of Miss Smith's mysterious disappearance will also solve the equally mysterious disappearance two years and two months ago of Miss Alice Corbett, 19, of Utica, New York, Smith College Junior. They regard it as more than a coincidence that both girls vanished on Friday, the 13th.

The hunt by all officers of the state police was the result of the intervention of United States Senator Frederick Hale, of Maine, a friend of the vanished girl's father, a retired New York broker. The Senator revealed that the family of Miss Smith fear that she has been kidnapped and held for ransom. She was recently bequeathed a large sum of money—reported to be $2,000,000—by a distant relative.

Senator Hale telegraphed an appeal to Governor Alvan T. Fuller to have the state employ every possible resource of the commonwealth to locate the missing girl. Governor Fuller immediately got in touch with Brigadier General Alfred F. Foote, commissioner of public safety, instructing him to give every assistance in the search for Miss Smith, and so notified Senator Hale at Washington.

TROTZKY EXILED BY ENEMIES OF SOVIET INTO CENTRAL ASIA

Former Leader Is Cheerful When He Leaves Moscow

RIGA, Jan. 18.—Leon Trotsky, whose meteoric career carried him from obscurity to one of the most powerful posts in the Soviet government and then back into obscurity again, is enroute from Moscow today to his place of exile in Central Asia.

Advices from Moscow said that Trotsky took his banishment philosophically and appeared cheerful when he left the Soviet capital. Trotsky left Moscow late Monday night on the Tashkent express for Vienna, in Russian Turkestan near the Chinese frontier. It is one of the most isolated spots in Asia and Trotsky will be lost to the world while he is there.

Several secret police accompanied the one-time commissar for war and marine. Trotsky took many books and a large quantity of writing materials. He was alone, none of his adherents in the opposition faction being sent to the same place.

Banishment of Trotsky and the other "opponents" was brought about by their criticism of Soviet policy and the tactics of the Stalin-Bukharin group. Trotsky claimed that the Soviet was swinging away from the communism of Lenin and moving in the direction of capitalism.

"WE ARE ALL WALKING CEMETERIES"

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Thea Marovska's "great moment" came last Sunday night when she made her debut as an opera singer.

The curtain rose. She looked out upon a vast sea of faces. Here and there were friends. Back stage were flowers they had sent. She sang "Song Dramas of the People," in English, German, French, Russian and Yiddish. You see, all her life she had studied and worked for this big moment. She had been a pupil of Yvette Gilbert, famous French diseuse, and of Max Reinhardt, German master of stagecraft. Her voice rose and fell.

And then the curtain went down. The audience applauded politely and departed.

CONGRESS OPEN AT HAVANA; AMERICAN STAND DISARMING

Hughes And Associates Agree With All Suggestions

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—An appeal to the statesmen of the twenty-one Latin American countries to forget hate, ambition and rivalry and concentrate upon friendship and co-operation marked the first business session of the sixth Pan-American congress today.

It came from Dr. Rafael Martinez Ortiz, secretary of state for Cuba, who addressed the conference in the role of host to the gathering.

"Delegates," he said, "you are about to commence your labors; the program, drafted with the help of all, permits the hope for excellent results."

The American delegation is leaving no stone unturned to convince the suspicious countries of South America that the cards are on the table—face up.

The Latin-American statesmen who came to Havana anticipating trouble have been to a large extent disarmed by the bland manner in which the United States delegation headed by Charles Evans Hughes, has fallen in with every suggestion of the conference.

The huge plane was launched on its attempt to establish a new world's endurance mark yesterday morning at 8:09 o'clock. Its tanks at the time of the take off carried 1,500 gallons of gasoline, sufficient fuel in the opinion of the flyers, to allow for success with the absence of unforeseen mishaps.

Fuel shortage was the cause of the failure of a previous attempt made by Captain Kingsford-Smith and Lieutenant Pond to break the record after more than forty-nine hours of continuous flying.

BAR COMMITTEE PROVIDES FOR DAMAGES TO CROSSING VICTIMS

Bill Authorizes Recovery Despite Contributory Negligence On Part Of Claimants—Will Be Discussed.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—Provision for recovery of damages by persons who are victims of grade crossing accidents is made in a bill drafted by the committee on judicial administration and legal reform, Ohio State Bar Association, it was announced today.

This bill provides for recovery of damages, regardless as to whether the victims of such accidents are guilty of contributory negligence.

Those attending the annual mid-winter meeting of the association at the Desher-Wallick Hotel here January 26-28, will discuss this bill, it was stated. Whether the bill will be introduced at the next regular session of the Ohio legislature will depend upon the action of the association, it was announced.

The proposed measure would provide for a reduction in the amount of damages collectable in case of contributory negligence, but such negligence, it was stated, would not be a bar to recovery, as it now is.

"Ambulance chasers," or attorneys who employ runners to solicit personal injury cases for them, as well as the practice of law by banks and trust companies acting as agents for their clients are scored in the committee's report it was announced.

SCION OF PURPLE

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 18.—That he is the son of the famous John Orth, who before his death in New York in 1924 declared he was the long missing Archduke Johann Salvatore of Austria was the claim here today of Rupert J. Salvatore, 29, Salvatore declared that after searching from coast to coast for clues of his father's noble strain.

Some of them did not even mention it. "Unfortunately," said one, "Mme. Marovska cannot sing. Her sense of pitch is so flagrantly inexact that it neutralizes her otherwise delightful performance." Another said: "She roamed from eighteenth century France to contemporary rustic America."

She seemed to sense that night, as she stood before the footlights, that she had "failed." She smiled (a strained smile, her friends thought) during the bits of monologue she injected between her songs. One of her remarks was:

"We are all walking cemeteries, in which we buried dead hopes, dead ambitions, dead sorrows and dead joys."

SCREEN BEAUTY TO BECOME BRIDE

Blanche Mehaffey, pretty film player, and George J. Hausen, Los Angeles business man, have made application for a marriage license. The nuptials will take place in the near future.

MONOPLANE CONTINUES FLIGHT IN ENDURANCE RECORD TRIAL

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, San Francisco, Jan. 18.—The giant tri-motored monoplane, Spirit of California, manned by Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian flyer, and Lieutenant George R. Pond of the United States naval reserve, was still aloft today, after nineteen and a half hours of continuous flying in an effort to smash the world's endurance record.

Circling over the airport like a monster night-bird, its three engines were functioning perfectly and its gas supply was encouragingly high, according to a stream of radio messages coming to airport officials from the two birdmen.

At 3:31 a. m., the flying pair, who seek to lower the mark of 52 hours and 22 minutes, set by two German aviators, messaged: "all is well."

The huge plane was launched on its attempt to establish a new world's endurance mark yesterday morning at 8:09 o'clock. Its tanks at the time of the take off carried 1,500 gallons of gasoline, sufficient fuel in the opinion of the flyers, to allow for success with the absence of unforeseen mishaps.

CONGRESSMAN BEGG WILL BE CANDIDATE FOR OHIO GOVERNOR

Sandusky Solon To Seek Republican Nomination.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—Formal announcement of the candidacy of Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, for the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio, was published here today.

Attorney General Edward C. Turner and former Lieut. Gov. Charles H. Lewis, Harpster, recently announced that they are candidates for the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination.

Congressman Begg, 49, is serving his fifth term as congressman from the 13th Ohio district. He managed the campaign which resulted in the selection of Congressman Nicholas Longworth, Cincinnati, as speaker of the national house of representatives.

Touching upon what he regarded as issues during the coming state campaign, Begg promised to eliminate extravagance and waste in road building and upkeep. He pledged himself to impartial enforcement of all laws, favored development and conservation of natural resources, and asserted that labor should share equally in the general prosperity of the state.

Dealing with the subject of regulation of public utilities, Begg said that his policy would be "to make it possible for all the citizens of Ohio to enjoy the benefits of the utility service at a minimum cost." He contended that agriculture must be considered from the marketing, as well as the production standpoint, and stated that, in order to permit industry to flourish, corporation and other taxes must not be higher in Ohio than in other states.

ARCH FIEND ADMITS TWO OTHER ATTACKS IN LAST TWO YEARS

Remains Silent On Arraignment At Roadside Court

IONIA, Mich., Jan. 18.—Adolph Hotelling, revealed now as the arch fiend who attacked two children of his Owosso neighbors and suspected as the "ape man" who terrorized Owosso housewives two years ago is ready to plead guilty to the murder of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider.

In an amplified confession today penned by himself, Hotelling said:

"Wishing to clear up everything in these matters and to make a clean breast of it all, I hereby confess to the attack upon Esther Skinner at Oak Hill Cemetery, Owosso, on or about February 17, 1926 and to the attack upon Ella May Horn, near Carland, on April 27, 1927."

Before the day is over the life-sentence for the murder of little Dorothy may be passed on the mid-decayed churchman whose arrest and Hyde personally embraced a mild mannered public life cloaked in snuff respectability and a modicum of self-steeped in a sordid emotionalism which surpasses normal understanding.

The day may develop, however, a delaying legal wrangle, when Genesee County, scene of Hotelling's revolting crimes, demanding that judgment be executed within the county limits.

State authorities have not relaxed their precautions against lynching, and fear of Genesee mob violence promotes the desire of Governor Fred W. Green and prosecuting officials to obtain a change of venue for Hotelling's trial.

Judge Fred Brennan, presiding in Genesee circuit court is said to be determined not to grant the change of venue.

According to a report received by Gov. Green and W. W. Potter, attorney general, Judge Brennan said:

"I will not allow a change of venue unless Hotelling appears in person in my court and pleads not guilty. Talk of mob violence against the man is unfounded. The prisoner will be in no danger if returned to the jurisdiction of my court."

Gov. Green's comment was: "The blood be on their heads."

CHARGES INSANE RUNNING AT LARGE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 18.—An increasing number of episodes such as the killing of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider may be expected in Michigan within the next few years, Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan stated in an interview here today.

"The Schneider murder was just one of many events which are evidence of the results arising from the fact that many insane persons are running at large in Michigan who ought to be in asylums. The accommodations are inadequate," Dr. Little said.

"There are two things that ought to be done: proper care should be taken of the insane who are living today and steps should be taken to prevent their production."

"The people of the state will see more evidence of the situation every year until these steps are taken."

MORE MARINES SENT TO BATTLE SECTOR

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 18.—Reinforcements of United States marines left today for the Nueva Segovia district. Forces of Nicaraguan insurgents are reported active nearby.

According to United States marine air scouts, Gen. Augustino Sandino, leader of the rebels, has withdrawn his outposts in the region of El Chipote and has removed his headquarters.

Adherents of Sandino are reported to have exploded two bombs in the town of Jinotega, throwing the population into panic. Some of the residents fled, but the latest reports from Jinotega said the place was quiet.

Governor Fuller immediately got in touch with Brigadier General Alfred F. Pote, commissioner of public safety, instructing him to give every assistance in the search for Miss Smith, and so notified Senator Hale at Washington.

TROTSKY EXILED BY ENEMIES OF SOVIET INTO CENTRAL ASIA

Former Leader Is Cheerful When He Leaves Moscow

RIGA, Jan. 18.—Leon Trotsky, whose meteoric career carried him from obscurity to one of the most powerful posts in the Soviet government and then back into obscurity again, is enroute from Moscow today to his place of exile in Central Asia.

Advices from Moscow said that Trotsky took his banishment philosophically and appeared cheerful when he left the Soviet capital.

Trotsky left Moscow late Monday night on the Tashkent express for Vierny, in Russian Turkestan near the Chinese frontier. It is one of the most isolated spots in Asia and Trotsky will be lost to the world while he is there.

Several secret police accompanied the one time commissar for war and marine. Trotsky took many books and a large quantity of writing materials. He was alone, none of his adherents in the opposition faction being sent to the same place.

Banishment of Trotsky and the other "opponents" was brought about by their criticism of Soviet policy and the tactics of the Stalin-Bukharin group. Trotsky claimed that the Soviet was swinging away from the communism of Lenin and moving in the direction of capitalism.

"WE ARE ALL WALKING CEMETERIES—"

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Thea Marovska's "great moment" came last Sunday night when she made her debut as an opera singer.

The curtain rose. She looked out upon a vast sea of faces. Here and there were friends. Back stage were flowers they had sent. She sang "Song Dramas of the People," in English, German, French, Russian and Yiddish. You see, all her life she had studied and worked for this big moment. She had been a pupil of Yvette Gilbert, famous French diva, and of Max Reinhardt, German master of stagecraft. Her voice rose and fell.

And then the curtain went down. The audience applauded politely and departed.

CONGRESS OPEN AT HAVANA; AMERICAN STAND DISARMING

Hughes And Associates Agree With All Suggestions

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—An appeal to the statesmen of the twenty-one Latin-American countries to forget hate, ambition and rivalry and concentrate upon friendship and co-operation marked the first business session of the sixth Pan-American congress today.

It came from Dr. Rafael Martinez Ortiz, secretary of state for Cuba, who addressed the conference in the role of host to the gathering.

"Delegates," he said, "you are about to commence your labors; the program, drafted with the help of all, permits the hope for excellent results."

The American delegation is leaving no stone unturned to convince the suspicious countries of South and Central America that the cards are on the table—face up.

The Latin-American statesmen who came to Havana anticipating trouble have been to a large extent disarmed by the bland manner in which the United States delegation headed by Charles Evans Hughes, has fallen in with every suggestion, even including that of open sessions of the conference committees. That concession on the part of the North American delegates smacked of "open covenants openly arrived at"—a distinctive departure from the usual rules governing Pan-American congresses.

Theoretically, the advocates of "open diplomacy" have won a signal victory. Actually, there was considerable doubt today as to just how open this diplomacy it to be. It is true that committee hearings will be open to the public, via the press, but it requires but the request of one member of one committee to transfer the session into an executive one behind closed doors. That fact accounts for some of the alacrity with which Mr. Hughes accepted the Argentine proposition of open committee meetings.

It is anticipated that one of the questions which Mr. Hughes will want to have discussed in executive session is that dealing with the present situation of the United States in Nicaragua.

American military occupation of Nicaragua as such, is not a subject for conference discussion. There is however on the agenda the question of codifying international law with interpretations of "intervention" that are of vital importance to Washington's diplomacy in Central America.

The American answer to the Nicaraguan issue has already been decided upon. It will consist of the statement that there is no Nicaraguan question, inasmuch as the Nicaraguan government itself as well as both major political parties requested the presence of American marines.

The definition of what constitutes "intervention" however, presents another problem. Mexico, Salvador, Hayti and other countries that have felt the tread of United States marines want to define it pretty rigorously. They want to write into the international law that governs the Western Hemisphere the definition that the mere landing of armed forces constitutes intervention, irrespective of whether such armed forces were or were not invited.

The American answer to this proposition is not yet clear. Mr. Hughes said today that this bridge would be crossed when it was reached.

SCION OF PURPLE

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 18.—That he is the son of the famous John Orth, who before his death in New York in 1924 declared he was the long missing Archduke Johann Salvator of Austria, was the claim here today of Rupert J. Salvatore, 29. Salvatore declared that after searching from coast to coast for clues of his father's noble strain.

SCREEN BEAUTY TO BECOME BRIDE

Blanche Mehaffey, pretty film player, and George J. Hansen, Los Angeles business man, have made application for a marriage license. The nuptials will take place in the near future.

MONOPLANE CONTINUES FLIGHT IN ENDURANCE RECORD TRIAL

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, San Francisco, Jan. 18.—The giant tri-motored monoplane, Spirit of California, manned by Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian flyer, and Lieutenant George R. Pond of the United States naval reserve, was still aloft today, after nineteen and a half hours of continuous flying in an effort to smash the world's endurance record.

Circling over the airport like a monster night-bird, its three engines were functioning perfectly and its gas supply was encouragingly high, according to a stream of radio messages coming to airport officials from the two birdmen.

At 3:31 a. m., the flying pair, who seek to lower the mark of 52 hours and 22 minutes, set by two German aviators, messaged: "all is well."

The huge plane was launched on its attempt to establish a new world's endurance mark yesterday morning at 8:09 o'clock. Its tanks at the time of the take off carried 1,500 gallons of gasoline, sufficient fuel in the opinion of the flyers, to allow for success with the absence of unforeseen mishaps.

Fuel shortage was the cause of the failure of a previous attempt made by Captain Kingsford-Smith and Lieutenant Pond to break the record after more than forty-nine hours of continuous flying.

BAR COMMITTEE PROVIDES FOR DAMAGES TO CROSSING VICTIMS

Bill Authorizes Recovery Despite Contributory Negligence On Part Of Claimants—Will Be Discussed.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 18.—Provision for recovery of damages by persons who are victims of grade crossing accidents is made in a bill drafted by the committee on judicial administration and legal reform, Ohio State Bar Association, it was announced today.

This bill provides for recovery of damages, regardless as to whether the victims of such accidents are guilty of contributory negligence.

Those attending the annual mid-winter meeting of the association at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel here January 26-28, will discuss this bill, it was stated. Whether the bill will be introduced at the next regular session of the Ohio legislature will depend upon the action of the association, it was announced.

The proposed measure would provide for a reduction in the amount of damages collectable in case of contributory negligence, but such negligence, it was stated, would not be a bar to recovery, as it now the case.

"Ambulance chasers," or attorneys who employ runners to solicit personal injury cases for them, as well as the practice of law by banks and trust companies acting as agents for their clients are scored in the committee's report it was announced.

ARCH FIEND ADMITS TWO OTHER ATTACKS IN LAST TWO YEARS

Remains Silent On Arraignment At Road-side Court

IONIA, Mich., Jan. 18.—Adolph Hotelling, revealed now as the arch fiend who attacked two children of his Owosso neighbors and suspected as the "ape man" who terrorized Owosso housewives two years ago is ready to plead guilty to the murder of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider.

In an amplified confession today penned by himself, Hotelling said:

"Wishing to clear up everything in these matters and to make a clean breast of it all, I hereby confess to the attack upon Esther Skinner at Oak Hill Cemetery, Owosso, on or about February 17, 1926 and to the attack upon Ella May Horn, near Carland, on April 27, 1927."

Before the day is over the life sentence for the murder of little Dorothy may be passed on the mid-decayed churchman whose Jewish and Hyde personality enmeshed a mild mannered public life ceased in snug respectability and a mad self steeped in a sordid emotionalism which surpasses normal understanding.

The day may develop, however, a delaying legal wrangle, with Genesee County, scene of Hotelling's revolting crimes, demanding that judgment be executed within the county limits.

State authorities have not revealed their precautions against lynching, and fear of Genesee mob violence promotes the desire of Governor Fred W. Green and prosecuting officials to obtain a change of venue for Hotelling's trial.

Judge Fred Brennan, presiding in Genesee circuit court is said to be determined not to grant the change of venue.

According to a report received by Gov. Green and W. W. Potter, attorney general, Judge Brennan said:

"I will not allow a change of venue unless Hotelling appears in person in my court and pleads not guilty. Talk of mob violence against the man is unfounded. The prisoner, will be in no danger if returned to the jurisdiction of my court."

Gov. Green's comment was: "The blood be on their heads."

CHARGES INSANE RUNNING AT LARGE

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 18.—An increasing number of episodes such as the killing of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider may be expected in Michigan within the next few years, Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan stated in an interview here today.

"The Schneider murder was just one of many events which are evidence of the results arising from the fact that many insane persons are running at large in Michigan who ought to be in asylums. The accommodations are inadequate," Dr. Little said.

"There are two things that ought to be done: proper care should be taken of the insane who are living today and steps should be taken to prevent their production."

"The people of the state will see more evidence of the situation every year until these steps are taken."

MORE MARINES SENT TO BATTLE SECTOR

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 18.—Reinforcements of United States Marines left today for the Nueva Segovia district. Forces of Nicaraguan insurgents are reported active nearby.

According to United States marine air scouts, Gen. Augustino Sandino, leader of the rebels, has withdrawn his outposts in the region of El Chipote and has removed his headquarters.

Adherents of Sandino are reported to have exploded two bombs in the town of Jinotega, throwing the population into panic. Some of the residents fled, but the latest reports from Jinotega said this place was quiet.

FLYER MISSING

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Grave fears were held today for the safety of Ted Mosely, aviator, who left Daytona, Fla., at one o'clock last Monday afternoon for New York in his saffron-colored Stinson biplane. Mosely was last heard from in Savannah, Ga., where he had been on account of fog. He was due here last night.

CHAPTER LXV

All alone Lily had been sure that Pat was planning to marry The Ertz as soon as he was free.

But now that she actually heard it, she went sick and faint and dizzy, mulling it over and over in her mind.

She turned her head finally and looked at The Ertz, hardly believing her ears.

"Say that again," she said. "What you told me about marrying Pat as soon as I divorced him. Did he ask you to marry him?"

The nurse hesitated. "Well, not in so many words," she confessed. "But he told me that I was the person he should have married in the beginning. Instead of a girl like you—a girl who had had everything and was used to everything. And I told him it didn't make any difference to me that he had made a mistake and married you. I told him I still cared about him—I do I always have." She spoke as simply as a truthful child.

"But if he still loves you I wouldn't have him," she went on, as if she were thinking aloud, "because he'd never be happy with me, even if you were married to that Drummond man, would he? He'd always have you on his mind, and I'd know it."

Lily nodded. "Yes, you would if he did care for me," she agreed. "But he doesn't—and I am going to marry Staley Drummond. That is, I'm going to marry him if he still wants me to. He may be very angry with me because I came down here. I wrote to him the night I came here and forgot to mail the letter—but I can probably explain all that when I see him."

The Ertz nodded. "Things are all mixed up in this world, aren't they?" she asked. "People never seem to know their own minds about anything. What are you doing about your divorce?"

"I'm going to try to have it held up for a while—until Pat is better," Pat's wife answered, getting up from the window seat and yawning. "And I do hope he's better soon. Typhoid fever is a queer disease, isn't it? Dragging on for weeks this way, while we don't know whether Pat's going to get well or not."

They had all become so used to the knowledge that Pat was balanced on the very brink of death during these slow weeks that they could not speak of it without breaking down—without excitement.

"I don't understand you, coming down here to stay while he's sick, when all the time you're planning to marry Drummond," the nurse murmured, staring into the darkness of the hall. "That's why I say that you must still be in love with Pat."

"I was once, and I still have a tender spot in my heart for him," Lily answered. "And that's why I'm here, partly. Only I don't really know why I did come—I just had to, I guess. But this is the end of things all the same. As soon as Pat's all right, I'm gone, and the divorce comes off."

She went to bed, thinking how strange it was that she should be on friendly terms with this woman and that they should sit down calmly to discuss their feelings toward Pat. It was laughable, really.

She was almost asleep when his voice roused her. She sat bolt upright in bed, not quite sure that she had not been dreaming.

She listened—and then she heard it again. "Baby!" he was saying in the thick, drowsy voice of his delirium. But she knew that he wanted her. There was only one person in the world whom he called "Baby" in just that way, putting all of his love into the two silly little syllables.

In an instant Lily was out on the floor in her bare feet, and out of her room and on the threshold of the one across the hall.

Elizabeth Ertz was standing beside the bed, looking down at Pat. She had taken off her uniform and her long, brown hair was in two braids down her back. "Shh!" she said, and tried to wave Lily away. "He's worse. I'm going to telephone the doctor."

She tried to draw Lily with her into the hall and to shut the door of the room. But Lily was not to be drawn away—Pat had called her and she was going to him.

"Just don't try to hold me," she said quickly and sharply to the little nurse, and she flew into the bedroom.

Pat was still muttering in his stupor when she knelt down beside him on the rug and laid her hand on his shoulder and her head down on the pillow beside him. "There, there, my boy!" she kept saying to him, over and over, not knowing what she was saying. "There, there, nice boy!"

The doctor came, and Mrs. France came pattering in on her felt slippers. Florence woke up, too, and she and her father sat on the window seat in the hall and waited for the doctor to tell them how Pat was.

They had a long wait, for Dr. Billings, a small, conscientious man, took off his coat and helped Elizabeth Ertz give Pat the treatment that he advised.

Through it all Lily never moved. When the doctor came she went over to a corner of the room and sat there, huddled against the wall, with Pat's old blue bathrobe around her, and there she stayed, watching the bed with wide-open, frightened eyes.

"If Pat dies I may as well be dead, too," she told herself, as it came to her that a world without Pat in it would be a dull and dreary world to live in.

Why, what had she been thinking of all along—to even dream that she could give herself to Staley Drummond? She belonged to Pat, Drummond? She belonged to Pat, since he didn't want her, the only thing she could do was to stay with her mother and father. Or perhaps to get a job somewhere like Florence France. But never to marry Staley.

"Not even if Pat dies!" she promised herself. "Not even then would I marry Staley Drummond, or anybody else." It had taken this terrible sickness of Pat's to show her all these things, but she saw them now, as clearly as if she were looking into a mirror.

She knew why she had come to the house that night two weeks ago or more. She knew why she had stayed there when nobody in the house wanted her. She knew why she had worked with Elizabeth Ertz, even though Elizabeth Ertz was her greatest enemy—because to do all of these things meant that she could be near Pat.

Nobody mattered to her but him. And nothing mattered but him, not all of the things that Staley Drummond could buy for her. Automobiles, a great house, a country house, a riding horse, a whole jewel box of diamonds, a trip to Europe. They seemed as worthless as toys to her suddenly just as they had once before when she had first fallen in love with Pat.

"If only Pat lives, that's all I want, and all I ask," she said, not to herself, but to Someone to whom she found herself wildly praying as she crouched there in the corner of the room. "Even if he marries that girl, still I want him to live!"

"Here! Go downstairs and heat some water!" Elizabeth Ertz said to her almost roughly once toward the end of the long night. "And put some baking soda in it, and rush back up here with it!"

And Lily rushed. She carried it upstairs, but by the time she got there the doctor was outside the room and said that he wouldn't need it. Pat was resting for the time, and he wouldn't have him disturbed for anything.

"You can make some coffee for all of us though, if you want to do something," he said in his fussy, kindly way, and she ran back to the kitchen and put the pot on the stove.

While it was boiling she went upstairs to dress in one of the bungalow aprons that Florence had let her wear while she was in the house. Florence was getting into one of them herself.

"We may as well get up. It's six o'clock anyway," she yawned, and none of us can sleep anyway, we're that excited and wrought up."

So she followed Lily downstairs and went out on to the front porch for the morning's milk and cream. She came back with it in one hand and the paper in the other.

"Looky here, Lily," she cried, flinging it down upon the kitchen table. "Here's your picture in the public print. You're getting to be famous or something."

Lily frowned and set down the cup of hot black coffee she had been sipping. What was her picture doing in the morning paper, for goodness sake?

She picked it up, and as she touched it the word "DIVORCE" seemed to strike up at her from a headline above her photograph on the printed page. She took another look: "SOCIETY WOMAN PLANS TO DIVORCE CHAUFFEUR-HUSBAND."

She stared at it, speechless. "But I told Staley to stop the suit," she wailed after four or five minutes. "I told him to—Oh, Florence, I don't want to marry Staley Drummond. I've been crazy, haven't I, to think that a couple of automobiles and a big house and a lot of clothes could take the place of—well, of I don't know what."

"I guess you mean 'love,'" said the downright Florence. "I think you still love Pat, Lily. But you want to think things over—You know, you did hate being poor with Pat. You don't want to forget that."

Lily shook her head and tried to remember how dull life had seemed in the days of the Derbyshire Road flat and the washing machine and the bills with no money to pay them.

"I told Ma you weren't as bad as Sadye Jefferson said you were," said Florence, after a minute. "I told her you were a good woman all along when everybody else said you were like the Frazier girl down the street. You know the one—

I mean—the one with bleached hair and all the paint?"

Lily did know. She had seen the Frazier girl sweep past the house in automobiles with one of her men friends beside her many a time—She remembered her perfectly. A bleached blond with her face smeared with paint, her body fairly poured into too-tight black satin dresses, and with imitation pearls as big as white cherries around her neck. A brazen shameless creature.

"Who said I was like the Frazier girl?" she demanded furiously. "Everybody—almost," Florence blundered on.

Her Secret Beautifier

Envy of Her Friends

Miss C. Delano, Washington, writes:—"About two years ago I was bothered a great deal with a muggy, sallow and pimply skin. I found I could cover the blemishes with cosmetics, but this was only a temporary relief. My druggist recommended my purely vegetable laxative, and suggested my trouble might be constipation. After taking a short while I noticed a wonderful difference. My complexion has improved, also headaches, indigestion and biliousness never bothered me any more."

IF RHEUMATIC

BEGIN ON SALTS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric acid and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons. Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Adv.

Mrs. Nelson Stretcher, Clifton, is confined to her home by illness.

Mrs. Mary O'Hara has moved from Clifton to a property in Fernside Park, near Clifton.

Miss Lottie Blackburn, N. West St., has been confined to her home for the past week with the grip and tonsillitis.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mowen, W. Main St., are the parents of a son, born Tuesday.

Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hook, underwent an operation Wednesday morning for the removal of her tonsils and adenoids.

Trinity Choir will meet for practice Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A full attendance is requested.

FILE INSTALLED

A filing case constructed by Deputy Sheriff George Sugden and installed in the sheriff's office is expected to simplify a part of the routine office work.

It will be used for cards bearing the name and release dates of prisoners in the County Jail.

The regular meeting of Troop 45, B. S. A., will be held at the cabin Friday. Reports of the delegates to the annual Scout meeting will be given. Each Scout is asked to bring a stick of wood. All of the troop who expect to hike, be in attendance.

DYSKINESIA

Dyskinesia or habitual constipation wrecks more health every day than any other single thing. It saps strength and vitality, causes serious diseases of the stomach, kidneys and heart, brings on high blood pressure and makes you old years before your time.

The insidious condition of Dyskinesia is the result of our abnormal habits of living which place too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming weak or sluggish fails to supply the bowels enough bile. The bowels "tie up" and the poisonous waste retained affects the whole system including the vital organs.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men now know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to internal cleanliness and health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few soon tell.

C. A. WEAVER BUYS INTEREST IN CLOTHING STORE HE ONCE OWNED

Purchase of the interest of J. O. McDorman in The McDorman-Crawford clothing store, 13 E. Main St., by Charles A. Weaver, this city, former sole owner of the business, was announced Wednesday.

The transaction became effective Wednesday at noon and Mr. Weaver assumed charge of the business immediately.

O. J. Crawford, Peebles, O., who has had an interest in the business, will retain his connection with the store but will continue his association with the Grite Manufacturing Co., Baltimore, Md.

The firm name will be changed to The C. A. Weaver Co. clothing store and Mr. Weaver will have active management of the business, it is announced.

Mr. McDorman originally purchased the store from Mr. Weaver about six years ago, coming here from Jamestown, where he conducted a clothing store. He operated the business as a partnership under the name of McDorman and Humphrey but two years ago Mr. Crawford bought out Mr. Humphrey's interest.

Mr. McDorman has not announced his plans for the future. Ill health is said to have contributed to his decision to dispose of his interest in the firm. He has been in the clothing business for thirty years.

"MAD ANTHONY" IS SUBJECT OF SPEECH

"Mad Anthony" Wayne and his Revolutionary march through this part of the country was the subject of Dr. W. A. Galloway, well known historian, in a splendid address to the Xenia Rotary Club, Tuesday noon.

Dr. Galloway has made exhaustive study of the history of "Mad Anthony" and other data of historical interest in the state and his remarks were a revelation to the club members. His talk was the only program feature.

Women's Auxiliary, First Baptist Church, will hold an all-day meeting at the church Thursday, opening at 9 o'clock. A quilt will be knotted and a covered dish luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock. A business meeting will be held at 2 o'clock. Every member is urged to attend and friends are invited.

Mr. George W. Blackburn, Xenia, of the "Million Dollar Baby Co." will broadcast from WCAH, Fort Hayes Hotel, Columbus, Saturday night from 10 to 12 o'clock. The program will be under the auspices of the "Maniac Club" of that city.

Mrs. S. C. Wright, Cedarville, is recovering from a severe attack of illness, resulting from a complication of ailments.

All members of the degree team of Pride of Xenia Council, No. 140, D. of A., are asked to meet at the lodge hall Thursday evening.

Mrs. James Wilson III entertained the Presbyterian Choir at her home on N. Galloway St., Friday evening. Music was enjoyed and a salad course was served.

C. A. WEAVER

Mr. Weaver has been connected with The Metropolitan Co. in Dayton for the last three years and has a wide experience in the clothing business. Prior to that he spent more than a year in Florida. He was one of the original founders of the business in which he has again become a partner and later operated the store under sole ownership for many years during which time he was a leading Xenia merchant.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur Compound. Your hair is coarser, it makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

DYSKINESIA

Dyskinesia or habitual constipation wrecks more health every day than any other single thing. It saps strength and vitality, causes serious diseases of the stomach, kidneys and heart, brings on high blood pressure and makes you old years before your time.

The insidious condition of Dyskinesia is the result of our abnormal habits of living which place too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming weak or sluggish fails to supply the bowels enough bile. The bowels "tie up" and the poisonous waste retained affects the whole system including the vital organs.

The liver occasionally needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as medical men now know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning, so essential to internal cleanliness and health. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. Ox gall costs less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few soon tell.

C. A. WEAVER BUYS INTEREST IN CLOTHING STORE HE ONCE OWNED

Purchase of the interest of J. O. McDorman in The McDorman-Crawford clothing store, 13 E. Main St., by Charles A. Weaver, this city, former sole owner of the business, was announced Wednesday.

The transaction became effective Wednesday at noon and Mr. Weaver assumed charge of the business immediately.

O. J. Crawford, Peebles, O., who has had an interest in the business, will retain his connection with the store but will continue his association with the Grite Manufacturing Co., Baltimore, Md.

The firm name will be changed to The C. A. Weaver Co. clothing store and Mr. Weaver will have active management of the business, it is announced.

Mr. McDorman originally purchased the store from Mr. Weaver about six years ago, coming here from Jamestown, where he conducted a clothing store. He operated the business as a partnership under the name of McDorman and Pumphrey but two years ago Mr. Crawford bought out Mr. Pumphrey's interest.

Mr. McDorman has not announced his plans for the future. Ill health is said to have contributed to his decision to dispose of his interest in the firm. He has been in the clothing business for thirteen years.

WILBUR DORST DIES TUESDAY MORNING

J. Wilbur Dorst, 27, assistant general executive of Central Y. M. C. A. Columbus, died Tuesday morning at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Rockfield.

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monosodiumsalicylate of Salicylicacid

Fairfield. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., at the Rockfield home and burial will be made in Ferncliff Cemetery, in Springfield.

Mr. Dorst leaves his widow, Mrs. Cleo R. Dorst, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dorst, Springfield; two brothers, Dr. Stanley Dorst, Cincinnati and Paul at home, and four sisters, Florence, Dorothy, Helen and Margaret, all of Springfield.

His death occurred suddenly, resulting from hemorrhages when he was thought recovering from an illness of several months. He was granted a leave of absence by the Columbus Y. M. C. A. in June because of his health. His father is general executive of the Springfield Y. M. C. A.

The deceased was a graduate of Wittenberg College, a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity and Skull and Chain, honorary senior society. He edited the school annual and was active in all school activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorst were married June 6, 1926, culminating a school-day romance.

He enjoyed the remainder of the evening. Music will be supplied by Martin's Melody Orchestra, a Columbus seven-piece Masonic band. Covers are expected to be laid for between 150 and 200 guests at the affair.

It was decided at a Masonic Club committee meeting Tuesday night that the affair will be open only to Masons and their families in Greene County.

For members of the Masonic Club, the admission will be $1 per couple and for Masons that are non-members, the admission will be $2. In cases where more than two members of a family desire to be present, the charge will be $1 per plate for each extra person.

SCOUT EXECUTIVE WILL SPEAK HERE; DISTRICT PLANNED

All Xenia business men interested in Scouting are invited to attend an open meeting at the new Scout cabin Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock, to be featured by a talk by George F. Miller, New York City, deputy regional Scout executive.

It is planned to place Xenia in a Scout district in this section of the state that will make this city eligible to receive part-time assistance from a Scout executive.

Xenia would be in a district which includes Springfield, Urbana, Bellefontaine, and several other cities.

Ohio is being divided into districts for the advancement of Scouting work and an explanation of this plan will be given by Mr. Miller at the meeting Thursday.

Co-operation of local business men is needed if the plan is to be successful. The Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs are particularly urged to send representatives.

Troop No. 41 will hold its regular meeting Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the cabin, according to Deputy Scout Commissioner R. H. Kingsbury.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

By SHIRLEY BLAKE

That beautiful, even glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulfur.

Your hair is... turns gray or streaked. Just an application or two of Sage and Sulfur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulfur Compound.

This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulfur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

NO SPEED LIMIT

Professor Albert A. Michelson, of the University of Chicago, is about to make a correction in the generally accepted figure for the speed of light. We ordinary citizens, who seldom travel farther than from Ohio to New York, and seldom travel faster than a hundred miles an hour, have been reared on the theory that light travels through space at the rate of 186,000 miles per second.

Well, that seems fast enough for all practical purposes. But Professor Michelson wants to know just how fast light travels. He has timed a ray of light rather accurately already, but there is still an error of about ten miles an hour, and he is going to eliminate that. So by a year from today we'll probably know exactly how fast light travels.

But for practical purposes, such as talking, writing, and thinking, we'll still use the old approximate figure of 186,000 miles per second. That would be how many miles per hour? Oh, never mind, but it would be a good many.

INFORMATION FOR TRAVELERS

A local motorist, after taking note of the fact that most railroads are spending perfectly good money to advertise their lines in putting out fancy calendars and in other ways, suggests that they are overlooking one appealing scheme.

For instance, when a motorist is hitting off the miles along a highway and he comes to a railroad with a "Stop, Look and Listen" sign, the sign post never tells whether to look for a Big Four or a B. & O. train, or a New York Central or a Northern Pacific limited. And that is often just what the motorist would like to know. He wonders what road he has run into. If it is a good-looking line he might decide to use it the first time he takes a trip by rail. Of course, the crossing signs should not contain so much interesting information that motorists will be tempted to stop on the track and read it, but the road's initials on the post should be of value to both the company and the highway traveler.

MAKING THINGS HAPPEN

Queen Marie of Rumania has given the world a new conception of a queen's job and a new demonstration of the things a queen can do. A news dispatch from Bucharest the other day in regard to Marie's observance of her thirty-fifth wedding anniversary, mentioned that each one of the 35 years of her married life had been filled with stirring happenings and exciting episodes, investing her life with unusual glamor, variety and richness.

Although having been the ruler of a little out-of-the-way nation off in one corner of the world, Marie has stood out as one of the prominent women of Europe and of the world because she made things happen. It is said that the versatile dowager queen retains her habit of working some 15 hours a day and that she looks as young at 52 as she did at 35.

Any queen or working girl who decides just what she wants to achieve and then puts in 15 hours a day working toward that goal will soon find herself in the midst of a career just as interesting as she chooses to make it.

And that applies also to any prince or plodding plowman. The reason life is so dull and monotonous for many is that they wait for things to happen instead of stirring up things themselves.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

OF WHAT VALUE?

Twenty-five questions were submitted to country school children to determine their information and what they were most interested in. The question: "Of what value are snakes?" interested them the most. How often we hear adults as well as children ask these questions. "What use is a mosquito? Why the weeds? What good is a rat?" So go the questions. These questions reflect the ancient belief that the earth was made exclusively for man and his comfort. Things do not have to have a use. Many things have no use and no value. They are developments of life—life which takes all sorts of forms. The world is the world of all living creatures, not merely the world of man. We seem to be afflicted with an incurable egotism. We can't understand how anything can live which isn't of some USE to us.

INDEPENDENCE

One of the most important conclusions man can reach about himself is that he is not an independent being. He cannot "go it alone" this side of the grave, and probably not thereafter. A fuller and franker recognition of our relationships, our responsibilities, and our obligations would make us happier mortals. Too many use up their energy in a vain struggle to run away from something which cannot be run away from. They seek an imaginary "independence." Such an independence is contrary to the principles of human life and society.

STRANGE MESSAGES

The sun is continually sending messages to the earth, says Michael Pupin, great scientist. These messages are in the form of static or radio fading or earth currents in submarine cables. We are familiar with the strange behavior of electricity but we do not understand it. We see results but we do not know "why." This will be the major problem of the next generation.

GETTING ALL FACTS

President Max Mason, of Chicago University, says the first two years of a college course should be devoted to a student's background of knowledge in general. During the last two years, and in graduate work the student ought to participate in actual research work.

There is too much time given to listening to uninspiring professors read lectures which are filled with facts discovered by somebody else a hundred years ago. Above all things students should be inspired in the search for new truth.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

—By—
BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Jan. —One of the familiar of Greenwich Village, a quaint woman with tendencies her friends describe as slightly psychopathic, attended one of the local balls after a brief sojourn in Bellevue hospital. She had managed to get a "Keeper" badge and cap for her escort, and went giddily about introducing herself as Miss Lydia Whooosis, of the Psychopathic ward. It seemed all too terribly true, from her behavior, and those of us who look anyway had a chance to make some pertinent cracks.

Some of the wax mannequins in Fifth avenue shop windows these days adopt the most abandoned postures. Vanity-fair nymph in the corner showcase at York & Taylor's reclined seductively on a divan, the better to show her French - nudebeige - dust - Indian-skin, socks, and a goodly crowd had gathered to debate the possibilities of the modeler's inspiration. Four of the heated parties in the argument contended that Pola Negri had supplied the brain germ, and three others held out for the girl's appeal Clara Bow.

Contemplating the scene, I allowed myself idly to speculate upon the passing of the so-called vamp. In the movies, at any rate, she seemed to be on the wane. Show me a present-day cinema seductress who can have and undulate as Theda Bara used to! And since the dead-white make-up has gone slightly out of fashion, you see the amateur vampire less and less at parties.

No wonder the window dresser makes off with sets and sets them up in full view of the multitude. The vamp is already a curiosity, something to be shaped in wax and kept in state in a museum.

Eleven-thirty of a new York evening. . . . Eighteen chauffeurs and one solitary middle-aged maid wait outside the Ritz, on the Forty-sixth street side, as a debutante party progresses at a restaurant party. Managers to keep one-line family managers to keep up serious business of chaperonage at this late day. . . . A fireman stands out in the middle of Fifth avenue at Forty-fourth street and hails his outfit, the hook-and-ladder motor, as it champs through the long line of drawn up cars. He is as casual as a fat lady boarding a bus. He climbs on the sputtering wagon and the procession moves again. . . . Two girl movie reviewers discuss the said "graft" situation during the holidays. "Not a thing you could hook" is the verdict on the loot sent in by the Capitol, Paramount and RKO's.

The blind beggar in Forty-fifth street and the lame one in Forty-eighth street are doing very well, thanks. . . . The scene is considerably enlivened by the erect presences of various West Point cadets.

THE RIVIERA

On the train headed for the Riviera, which I believe I violate no confidence in calling that section of France which slopes down to the Mediterranean, we had our first introduction to couchette cars.

These are a little like Pullman sleeping cars except that they are well and Mr. Ford would make them, if he were in that line. They are not fully equipped. Each compartment makes up at night into four beds, upper and lower in equal parts; but the usual sleeping accessories are lacking—no sheets, blankets or pillows. Hence they are best adapted for passengers who like to sleep with their clothes on.

It looked for a time as if my companion and I must share a compartment in one of these flimsy-like substitutes for Pullmans, with a dignified Englishman and his wife. But just in the nick of time the railroad company hooked on a regular sleeping car of the best grade, which the French called a wagon-lit. Who but a Frenchman would go so far as to call a sleeping car a bed wagon?

Be that as it may, I think my traveling mate was a bit disappointed that we obtained better sleeping quarters.

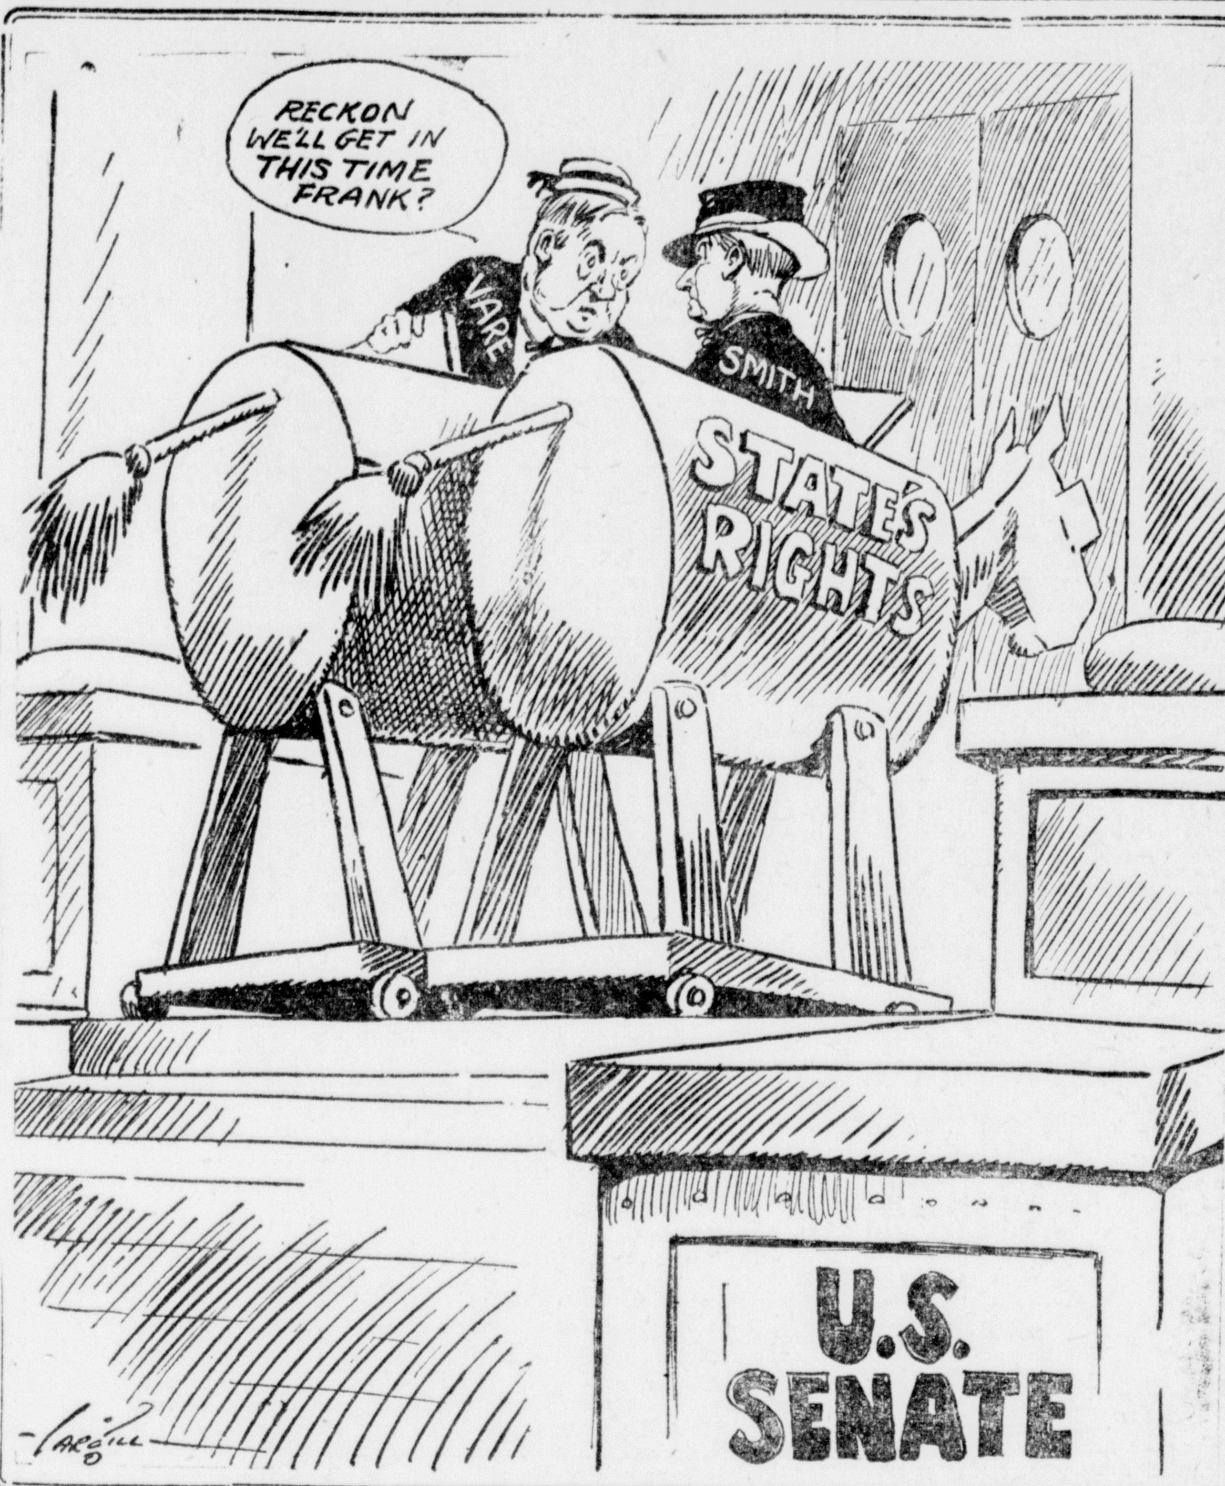

"All my life," he lamented, "I have yearned to intrude upon the privacy of an upper class Englishman, and now, when we have this rare opportunity to sleep in one of these English coaches, I am to be lured away by such commonplace luxuries as sheets and blankets and a private wash-room."

But the English couple seemed quite reconciled to our change of plans.

It seemed odd, by the way, to have our berth made up by a little Italian boy, with a knowledge of three languages, instead of by a negro.

The next morning, while still half asleep, and forgetful that we were in one of the world's far-

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

PERPLEXED

Suppose you love a girl and are faithful to her for almost two years. Then she decides she wants to "step out" a bit, and chooses other boy friends. But after a short time she signifies that she wants you back. Should you fly to her side, or should you intimate that "all is over between you" and that your heart, once spurned, will not return to its former allegiance? That seems to be the question asked here.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a girl for almost two years, and we thought a lot of one another. Recently she has become interested in other boy friends and has given me up. I have asked for dates since, but she has refused. Now she writes and says that I may call upon her again. Tell me whether I should go back to her again or forget her, since the way she treated me.

"Perplexed."

That depends on your feeling for her, Perplexed. I never believe in letting silly pride stand in the way of happiness. If you like her well enough, go to see her. If not, answer her note and say you are sorry but you are too busy—you know how. She has probably found out that you are not as nice as she thought you were, but I wouldn't blame you.

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

Yesterday we ran the feeding schedule for the sixth to the ninth month. If you are interested, please get yesterday's newspaper.

Weaning. By the ninth month, most Pediatricians advise beginning weaning. Begin the first week of the ninth month by omitting the nursing at 2 p. m. feeding. Give eight ounces of milk, and half water, boiled together for three minutes. Use no sugar. Increase the milk one tablespoonful and decrease the water one tablespoonful a day until whole milk is given.

famed beauty areas, I chanced to look out of the window and beheld a sight as startling as an alarm clock—sunrise on the coast of azure! The Mediterranean just as richly blue as it has been represented—pink houses with red tile roofs—brick red soil—blue wind-blown blinds, window boxes full of flowers—olive trees—everywhere a riot of color that made me think of a confectioner's show window.

It has always sounded like real grandeur to hear of a family occupying a villa in the Riviera. Yet we learn from fellow travelers that right tidy villas are to be had for as little as $100 a month. And servants may be employed for about $3 a week. Takes me back to my boyhood days when $3 was the standard wages for a hired girl. Spending the winter in the Riviera evidently isn't such big stuff after all.

I don't know why, but I had always thought of the Riviera as a finished product. Yet at the outlet, imagine myself in a growing town of Florida or California—allotments dotted with real signs and absurd little bungalows obviously built to sell. Comme ça, is rarely more than one or two jumps behind climate.

If you were just a little independent in your treatment of her. Some of these girls get a bit spoiled.

G. W. C. is a widower and he wants me to find him a friend with whom he may correspond. Object, matrimony. Sorry, Sir, but I cannot give such names and addresses through this column.

What Are Kissing Games

A poor little girl who has led a fast life writes me to ask shall she tell her fiancé. And gives this advice to girls:

"I hope all girls will take my advice when I say, watch your step. And I hope you boys who have no respect for a girl will take a different attitude, both for your own self-respect and for others."

BROKEN HEARTED.

In your case, hard as it will be, I am afraid you had better tell him, at least something. I am afraid he will hear it from some other source if you don't. What ever his decision, make up your mind that you will live a clean life, hereafter, and let this terrible early experience make a better and more understanding woman of you. You can help countless girls and boys because you know the temptations. Write me again and if I can help you in any way I shall be so glad to do so.

no sugar need be added. Stop boiling milk if certified or Pasteurized after two or three weeks.

The second week omit the 10 a. m. nursing also, and give eight ounces of milk, the strength you have worked up to.

The third week omit the 6 p. m. nursing; the fourth week the 6 a. m. nursing, giving the milk instead. By the tenth or eleventh month, omit the 10 p. m. nursing. This gradual weaning will cause no disturbances whatever.

If the baby has been a bottle-fed baby, you can begin by the ninth month to gradually decrease the water or the cereal and the sugar in the formula, until whole milk is being taken some time the ninth or tenth month.

Begin to feed from the cup the last part of the year; otherwise you will have difficulty to wean from the bottle. The bottle need not and should not be given after the first year.

Feeding Schedule From Ninth to Twelfth Month

6 a. m.—Nursing or bottle. (Omit breast feeding at fourth week of ninth month, give eight ounces of milk formula instead.)

9 a. m.—Orange juice, at least four tablespoonfuls.

10 a. m.—Bread or bottle, preceded by strained cereal, three to four level tablespoonfuls.

Piece of dry toast. Add small amount of butter to toast by ninth month.

Egg yolk, two or three times a week, or often. Begin earlier if babe is anemic. Can be stirred in milk or taken on toast. (Omit nursing second week of ninth month. Give bottle.)

2 p. m.—Nursing or bottle. (Omit nursing second week of the ninth month.)

Dry toast and butter, one-half to one slice.

Strained or pureed vegetables, up to three or four tablespoonfuls, or more.

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Suppose a member of your family has been advised by his physician not to eat meat. Eggs make a good substitute. It is well to substitute them or some other hearty dish like a cheese mixture two or three times a week in place of meat—just on general principle. Some people think they are not getting a full meal—unless meat is served—once a day at least.

Delicate Eggs or Round Steak Stew
Spinach Mashed Potatoes
Cabbage and Carrot Salad
Brown or Raisin Bread
Apple Jelly Banana Snowball
Milk

Banana Snowball—Place one pint milk in double boiler with a pinch of salt. When hot add one teaspoon cornstarch stirred in cold milk. Stir over fire until thick, then add butter and egg yolks beaten with sugar. When cold add vanilla, beat the two egg whites very stiff and mix with two table-spoons sugar. Cut three bananas into slices, place in a dish, pour the custard over and put the whites on top in shape of snowballs.

SUGGESTIONS Thoughtful Wife

Here is a suggestion that other wives may like to follow: "One can buy such good looking cuff links, and collar buttons being so cheap, I hit upon the idea of buying a supply of both, enough for each shirt my husband owns. Now, when I iron them I put the links and buttons in the shirt, and my husband always comments on the convenience of taking them from the drawer, ready to put on."

DATE AND PEANUT PASTE.

Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe

Two cups stoned dates, one-half cup peanut butter, one-fourth cup confectioners' sugar, one-half teaspoon salt. Put dates through a food chopper, add peanut butter and salt and work into paste. Roll into small balls, then cover with sugar and lay on plate to dry. The dates and peanut butter contain lime, iron and phosphorus, and the peanut butter also has vitamins A and B. This can be given to the older children in place of candy, and may be used as dessert. It should not be eaten by those who want to reduce.

Fruit, one to three tablespoonfuls, fresh (scrapped) or stewed. If stewed, very little sugar.

6 p. m.—Cereal, same amount as nursing or bottle, followed by nursing or bottle. Add milk on cereal. No sugar (omit nursing by third week of the ninth month).

10 p. m.—Nursing or bottle. (Omit at tenth or eleventh month).

You should take your baby to a baby clinic or a children's specialist, if you can. You should also have some good books on the feeding and general care of children. We have such a list, which you can obtain by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

NOTE—Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope, with orders for letters on reducing and raising.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—International peace talk is so generally pure puff that folks can be much blamed for not taking it very seriously when they overhear a couple of governments engaged in it.

It's so now. The United States and France are carrying on a conversation which might very well seem to be paying no attention to, and yet it's of world importance—if it means anything.

But does it? At any rate, it's worth understanding.

Not long ago, in a burst of holiday good feeling—through his hat, some say—Foreign Minister Briand, of France, declared he wished his country could make an unqualified peace treaty with America—no war, no matter what happened.

This sounded pretty nice, off hand.

However, there was a joker in it—as usual.

Say America agrees not to fight France under any circumstances. And then France gets into a war with England, for instance. And blockades England's coast. And begins sinking American ships that try to run the blockade. Fine for France, but not so pleasant for America, which can't fight, whatever she does—we've promised we wouldn't.

Nevertheless, somewhat to M. Briand's surprise, perhaps, Secretary of State Kellogg took him up on his proposition.

For the reason above set forth, Kellogg wasn't able, he explained, to discuss an unqualified Franco-American peace treaty, but he expressed America's willingness to join France in an effort to get EVERYBODY into a treaty, under which nobody could fight anybody else under any circumstances. This, Kellogg pointed out, would remove all danger of a mix-up over a war with some outsider inasmuch as there wouldn't be any outsiders.

In the meantime M. Briand had been taking a second think. France belong to the League of Nations.

The league opposes war if it can be avoided, but it holds that, sometimes, it can't be avoided. In such an event, if an outlaw power acts mean enough, the league members are bound to join one another in giving said outlaw a good whaling.

Suppose (this presents the league in an unpleasant light, but it can't be helped, for the sake of argument) the league should decide that the United States was due for a licking and should call on France to help administer it. And France was already pledged not to fight the United States under any circumstances.

What an embarrassing situation! Minister Briand, his bluff—if any—called, accordingly replied to Secretary Kellogg that he was all in favor of the program outlined, but of course, he added, he took it for granted the latter was talking about "offensive warfare"—naturally a country must fight in self-defense, if it has to.

So there you are. No nation ever admitted that it was fighting in anything but self-defense, in all history. The negotiations between Paris and Washington are still going on. It's hard to end such a discussion, once it's started.

By the way, in your ear, this is a secret—the state department folks gave a sweet, sad smile when they read that reference by M. Briand to the difference between offensive and defensive warfare, and if any treaty's signed, you can put it down in your diary that there won't be any more surprised man in this country than Secretary Kellogg.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Intimacy of Your Home Calls for Dainty and Conservative Make-up

Very few women like to face themselves in the mirror when they first wake up in the morning. Color has disappeared, and all the fine lines and wrinkles show up. But my advice to women is to keep close tab on your morning reflection in the mirror, and use the kind of beauty regime that will insure you a complexion that you can be proud of when you first roll out of bed. Your "morning face" should teach you not to rely too much on make-up for your beauty. Pay a little more attention to your good looks at night so you will need less of the finishing touches to make you an attractive woman by early daylight.

But I have told you in former talks how to take care of your skin, whatever its type, to keep it attractive in itself, so I shall not go into that again here.

Before you touch up your morning complexion, wake up your skin with a clearing, animating, beautifying skinduff that you can keep on while you dress. Then "finishing" or skin-toning lotion that will close the pores and leave a smooth flattering surface. Apply a little rouge-en-creme, working it in well with the fingertips, and being careful to blend the edges. Powder very lightly, being careful to use a shade that is at least one tone darker than your skin.

Use your lipstick sparingly. You can even touch up your lips with a little of that same rouge-en-creme that you used on your cheeks. If your lips seem dry or harsh, cream them well before you apply the lip rouge, being careful to remove the excess with a cleansing tissue. You will probably not want to use eye make-up for the intimacy of your own home. However, you should brush all the powder out of your brows and lashes with a little brush made especially for the purpose. Then shape your brows with your fingers.

I know of a woman whose make-up in her own home was so subtle that her husband never knew she used it. She applied liquid rouge. However, I do not advise that type of rouge, as it is none too good for the skin. Just as natural an effect can be obtained with rouge-en-creme in a subtle natural tone, such as red raspberry shade, or if you are a blonde, in a lighter shade such as red geranium.

In tomorrow's talk I am going to discuss "Make-up for Your Morning Sports or Shopping."

A frosh was walking across the quad and noticed a shining half dollar lying on the stone path. As he picked it up, and was smiling at his lucky break, a passing soph gently tapped him on the shoulder and said:

"That's my cartwheel, thank you. I dropped that silver dollar a few minutes ago and it must have rolled right into your path."

"Here," lamented the timid frosh, "take this half dollar, and I'll bring the other half down in a minute."

Peter's Adventure

A FRIEND INDEED
"The 'black bird' of the family!" There was something about this last remark of Screech Owl's that made Crow angry.

"Don't say that again," cawed he. "I am a 'black bird' myself and I have no such mean traits as you relative of yours. I have a good mind to give you a taste of my beak, Owl, and it is sharp, I can promise you that. Lack of food hasn't dulled it a bit."

"Shay! Shay!" hissed Screech Owl fearfully. "Don't you dare to poke your beak in my hole. I have done no harm, have I? And I am sure that I didn't mean anything by calling Great Horned Owl a 'black bird.' That is just an expression that we have in the family."

"There you have said it again," screamed Crow furiously. "You are the most provoking chap. No wonder my cousins, the Blue Jays, love to chase Great Horned Owl. They caught you, too, as you were coming home this morning."

"Now, what are you too scrapping for?" asked Peter, suddenly. "Owl didn't mean to insult you, Crow, I am sure. And, Crow, you must acknowledge that it isn't your Owl's habit to fly by night and sleep by day, why, that is his business, and I don't suppose that he really means to scare any of you when he gives his hunting cry. I think he is very wise myself, and I think that it is too bad the way we are keeping him awake. What do you say to our going away and leaving him in peace?"

"Ca-ca-w! And w'o may you be, my fine sir, to have so much to say about matters and things?" snapped Crow. Raising his crown feathers, he leaned forward and sneered inquisitively at the boy.

Then he gave a gasp of surprise. "Are you the Two-Legs that scattered bread crumbs in a corner of the garden yesterday?" asked he. "You look very much like him except you are tiny and he was big."

"I am the Two-Legs you mean," laughed Peter. "I am little on purpose now, you know, but I am liable to grow large again at any time. I am glad you recognize me. I hoped you would. You needn't worry any longer about starving to death, for I will see to it that you have a few crumbs to eat every day this winter!"

"Then you are a friend in time of need," sawed the Crow in tones of great joy. "How pleased my wife will be when I tell her. She has been crying herself sick. In fact, she was too ill to come out with me this morning and I miss her company. It is not once in a coon's age that we are separated, even on a fly."

"Tcherr-whieu!" wailed Screech Owl suddenly, and both the bird and boy jumped. "It makes me feel so sad to hear you talk about my wife. I shall have to roost here all alone for another month or so. No lady Owl will pay any attention to me until the cold weather is nearly over. I do want a mate so badly. Tcherr-whieu! Tcherr-whieu! Oh, what a lonely bird I am!"

NO SPEED LIMIT

Professor Albert A. Michelson, of the University of Chicago, is about to make a correction in the generally accepted figure for the speed of light. We ordinary citizens, who seldom travel farther than from Ohio to New York, and seldom travel faster than a hundred miles an hour, have been reared on the theory that light travels through space at the rate of 186,000 miles per second.

Well, that seems fast enough for all practical purposes. But Professor Michelson wants to know just how fast light travels. He has timed a ray of light rather accurately already, but there is still an error of about ten miles an hour, and he is going to eliminate that. So by a year from today we'll probably know exactly how fast light travels.

But for practical purposes, such as talking, writing, and thinking, we'll still use the old approximate figure of 186,000 miles per second. That would be how many miles per hour? Oh, never mind, but it would be a good many.

INFORMATION FOR TRAVELERS

A local motorist, after taking note of the fact that most railroads are spending perfectly good money to advertise their lines in putting out fancy calendars and in other ways, suggests that they are overlooking one appealing scheme.

For instance, when a motorist is hitting off the miles along a highway and he comes to a railroad with a "Stop, Look and Listen" sign, the sign post never tells whether to look for a Big Four or a B. & O. train, or a New York Central or a Northern Pacific limited. And that is often just what the motorist would like to know. He wonders what road he has run into. If it is a good-looking line he might decide to use it the first time he takes a trip by rail. Of course, the crossing signs should not contain so much interesting information that motorists will be tempted to stop on the track and read it, but the road's initials on the post should be of value to both the company and the highway traveler.

MAKING THINGS HAPPEN

Queen Marie of Rumania has given the world a new conception of a queen's job and a new demonstration of the things a queen can do. A news dispatch from Bucharest the other day in regard to Marie's observance of her thirty-fifth wedding anniversary, mentioned that each one of the 35 years of her married life had been filled with stirring happenings and exciting episodes, investing her life with unusual glamor, variety and richness.

Although having been the ruler of a little out-of-the-way nation off in one corner of the world, Marie has stood out as one of the prominent women of Europe and of the world because she made things happen. It is said that the versatile dowager queen retains her habit of working some 15 hours a day and that she looks as young at 52 as she did at 35.

Any queen or working girl who decides just what she wants to achieve and then puts in 15 hours a day working toward that goal will soon find herself in the midst of a career just as interesting as she chooses to make it.

And that applies also to any prince or plodding plowman. The reason life is so dull and monotonous for many is that they wait for things to happen instead of stirring up things themselves.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

OF WHAT VALUE?

Twenty-five questions were submitted to country school children to determine their information and what they were most interested in. The question: "Of what value are snakes?" interested them the most. How often we hear adults as well as children ask these questions. "What use is a mosquito? Why the weeds? What good is a rat?" So go the questions. These questions reflect the ancient belief that the earth was made exclusively for man and his comfort. Things do not have to have a use. Many things have no use and no value. They are developments of life—life which takes all sorts of forms. The world is the world of all living creatures, not merely the world of man. We seem to be afflicted with an incurable egotism. We can't understand how anything can live which isn't of some USE to us.

INDEPENDENCE

One of the most important conclusions man can reach about himself is that he is not an independent being. He cannot "go it alone" this side of the grave, and probably not thereafter. A fuller and franker recognition of our relationships, our responsibilities, and our obligations would make us happier mortals. Too many use up their energy in a vain struggle to run away from something which cannot be run away from. They seek an imaginary "independence." Such an independence is contrary to the principles of human life and society.

STRANGE MESSAGES

The sun is continually sending messages to the earth, says Michael Pupin, great scientist. Those messages are in the form of static or radio fading or earth currents in submarine cables. We are familiar with the strange behavior of electricity but we do not understand it. We see results but we do not know "why." This will be the major problem of the next generation.

GETTING ALL FACTS

President Max Mason, of Chicago University, says the first two years of a college course should be devoted to a student's background of knowledge in general. During the last two years, and in graduate work the student ought to participate in actual research work.

There is too much time given to listening to uninspiring professors read lectures which are filled with facts discovered by somebody else a hundred years ago. Above all things students should be inspired in the search for new truth.

The Daybook

OF A

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Jan. —One of the familiars of Greenwich Village, a quaint woman with tendencies her friends describe as slightly psychopathic, attended one of the local balls after a brief sojourn in Bellevue hospital. She had managed to get a "key" badge and cap for her escort, and went giddily about introducing herself as Miss Lyddy Whoosis, of the Psychopathic ward. It seemed all too terribly true, from her behavior, and those of us who look anyway had a chance to make some pertinent cracks.

Some of the wax mannequins in Fifth avenue shop windows these days adopt the most abandoned postures. A vanity-fair nymph in the corner showcase at Yord & Taylor's reclined seductively on a divan, the better to show her French-nudebeige-dust-Indian-skin, socks, and a goodly crowd had gathered to debate the possibilities of the modeler's inspiration. Four of the heated parties in the argument contended that Pola Negri had supplied the brain germ, and three others held out for the girl's appeal Clara Bow.

Contemplating the scene, I allowed myself idly to speculate upon the passing of the so-called vamp. In the movies, at any rate, she seemed to be on the wane. Show me a present-day cinema seductrice who can have and undulate as Theda Bara used to. And since the dead-white make-up has gone slightly out of fashion, you see the amateur vampire less and less at parties.

No wonder the window dresser makes offices now and sets them up in full view of the multitude. The vamp is already a curiosity, something to be shaped in wax and kept in state in a museum.

Eleven-thirty of a new York evening. . . . Eighteen chauffeurs and one solitary middle-aged maid wait outside the Ritz, on the Forty-sixth street side, as a debutante party progresses at least one-line family manages to keep up serious business of chaperonage at this late day. . . . A fireman stands out in the middle of Fifth avenue at Forty-fourth street and hails his outfit, the hook-and-ladder motor, as it champs through the long line of drawn up cars. He is as casual as a fat lady boarding a bus. He climbs on the sputtering wagon and the procession moves again. . . . Two girl movie reviewers discuss the "graft" situation during the holidays. "Not a thing you could hook" is the verdict on the loot sent in by the Capitol, Paramount and Roxy's. . . . A crowd comes with enthusiasm for Madge Kennedy's new play, "Paris Bound." . . . The blind beggar in Forty-fifth street and the lame one in Forty-eighth street are doing very well, thanks. . . . The scene is considerably enlivened by the erect postures of various West Point cadets.

Kellygrams

THE RIVIERA
On the train headed for the Riviera, which I believe I violate no confidence in calling that section of France which slopes down to the Mediterranean, we had our first introduction to the "couchette cars."

These are a little bit like Pullman sleeping cars except that they are more as Mr. Ford would make them, if he were in that line. They are not fully equipped. Each compartment makes up at night into four beds, upper and lower in equal parts, but the usual sleeping accessories are lacking—pillows, sheets, blankets or pillows. Hence they are best adapted for passengers who like to sleep with their clothes on.

It looked for a time as if my compartment and I were to share a compartment in one of these fly-ver-like substitutes for Pullmans, with a dignified Englishman and his wife. But just in the nick of time the railroad company hooked on a regular sleeping car of the best grade, which the French call a wagon-lit. Who but a Frenchman would go so far as to call a sleeping car a bed wagon?

Be that as it may, I think my traveling mate was a bit disappointed that we obtained better sleeping quarters.

"All my life," he lamented, "I have yearned to intrude upon the privacy of an upper class Englishman, and now, when we have this rare opportunity to sleep informally with an English couple, and maybe come to a better international understanding, it does seem too bad to be lured away by such commonplace luxuries as sheets and blankets and a private wash-room."

But the English couple seemed quite reconciled to our change of plans.

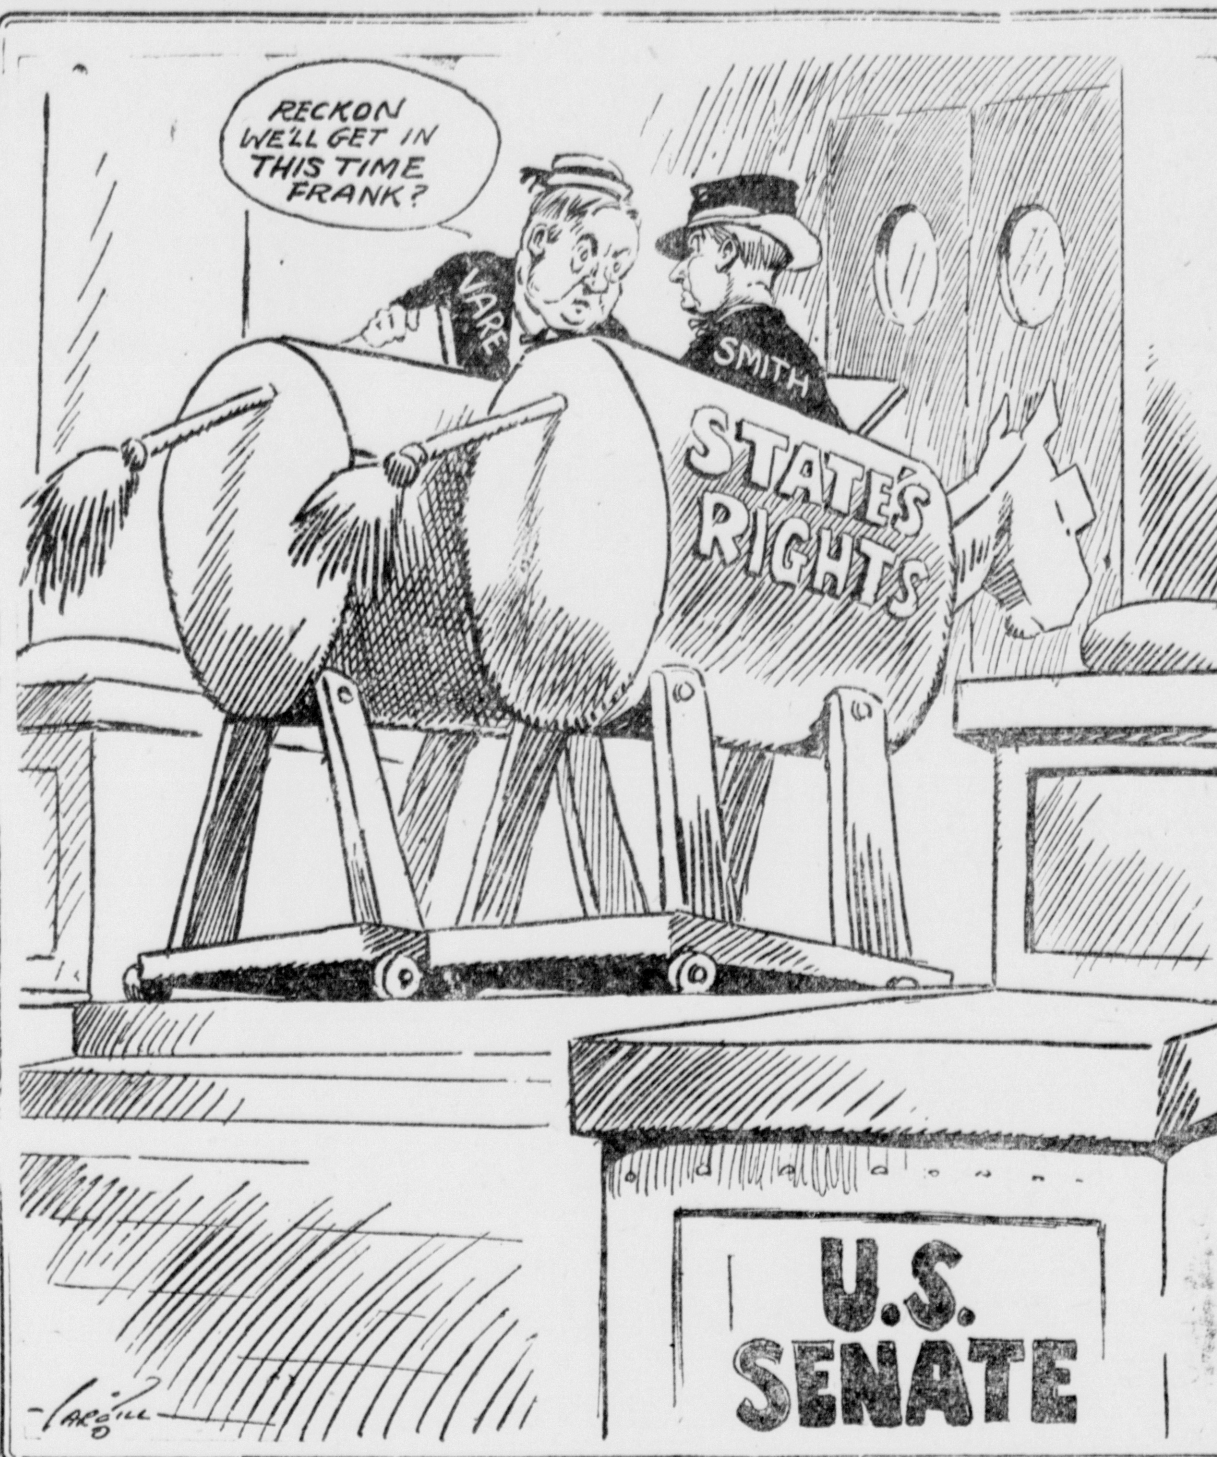

It seemed odd, by the way, to have our berths made up by a little

Italian boy, with a knowledge of three languages, instead of by a negro.

The next morning, while still half asleep, and forgetful that we were in one of the world's far-

PERPLEXED

Suppose you love a girl and are faithful to her for almost two years. Then she decides she wants to "step out" a bit, and chooses other boy friends. But after a short time she signifies that she wants you back. Should you fly to her side, or should you intimate that "all is over between you," and that your heart, once spurned, will not return to its former allegiance? That seems to be the question asked here.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a girl for almost two years, and we thought a lot of one another. Recently she has become interested in other boy friends and has given me up. I have asked for dates since, but she has refused. Now she writes and says that I may call upon her again. Tell me whether I should go back to her again or forget her, since the way she treated me.

"Perplexed."

That depends on your feeling for her. Perplexed, I never believe in letting silly pride stand in the way of happiness. If you like her well enough, go to see her. If not, answer her note and say you are sorry but you are too busy—you know how. She has probably found out that you are nicer than the others and she prefers you, but I wouldn't blame you if you were just a little independent in your treatment of her. Some of these girls get a bit spoiled.

G. W. C. is a widower and he wants me to find him a friend with whom he may correspond. Object, matrimony. Sorry, Sir, but I cannot give such names and addresses through this column.

What Are Kissing Games
A poor little girl who has led a fast life writes me to ask shall she tell her fiancé. And gives this advice to girls:

"I hope all girls will take my advice when I say, watch your step. And I hope you boys who have no respect for a girl will take a different attitude, both for your own self-respect and for others."

BROKEN HEARTED.
In your case, hard as it will be, I am afraid you had better tell him, at least something. I am afraid he will hear it from some other source if you don't. Whatever his decision, make up your mind that you will live a clean life, hereafter, and let this terrible early experience make a better and more understanding woman of you. You can help countless girls and boys because you know the temptations. Write me again and if I can help you in any way I shall be so glad to do so.

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

Yesterday we ran the feeding schedule for the sixth to the ninth month. If you are interested, please get yesterday's newspaper.

Weaning
By the ninth month, most pediatricians advise beginning weaning. Begin the first week of the ninth month by omitting the nursing at 2 p. m. feeding. Give eight ounces of milk, and half water, boiled together for three minutes. Use no sugar. Increase the milk one tablespoonful and decrease the water one tablespoonful a day until whole milk is given.

famed beauty areas. I chanced to look out of the window and beheld a sight as startling as an alarm clock—sunrise on the coast of azure! The Mediterranean just as richly blue as it has been represented—pink houses with red tile roofs—brick red soil—blue window blinds, window boxes full of flowers—olive trees—everywhere a flow of color that made me think of a confectioner's show window.

It has always sounded like real grandeur to hear of a family occupying a villa in the Riviera. Yet we learn from fellow travelers that right tidy villas are to be had for as little as $100 a month. And servants may be employed for about $3 a week. Takes me back to my boyhood days when $3 was the standard wages for a hired girl. Spending the winter in the Riviera evidently isn't such big stuff after all.

I don't know why, but I had always thought of the Riviera as a finished product. Yet at the outskirts of Cannes, one could imagine himself in a growing town of Florida or California—allotments dotted with realtor signs and absurd little lunglows obviously built to sell. Commerce is far more than one or two jumps behind climate.

MENU HINT

Suppose a member of your family has been advised by his physician not to eat meat. Eggs make a good substitute. It is well to substitute them or some other hearty dish like a cheese mixture two or three times a week in place of meat—just on general principles. Some people think they are not getting a full meal—unless meat is served—once a day at least.

Delicate Eggs or Round Steak Stew
Spinach Mashed Potatoes
Cabbage and Carrot Salad
Brown or Raisin Bread
Apple Jelly Banana Snowball
Milk

Banana Snowball — Place one pint milk in double boiler with a pinch of salt. When hot add one teaspoon cornstarch stirred in cold milk. Stir over fire until thick, then add butter and egg yolks beaten with sugar. When cold add vanilla, beat the two egg whites very stiff and mix with two tablespoons sugar. Cut three bananas into slices, place in a dish, pour the custard over and put the whites on top in shape of snowballs.

SUGGESTIONS
Thoughtful Wife
Here is a suggestion that other wives may like to follow: "One can buy such good looking cuff links, and collar buttons being so cheap, I hit upon the idea of buying a supply of both, enough for each shirt my husband owns. Now, when I iron them I put the links and buttons in the shirt, and my husband always comments on the convenience of taking them from the drawer, ready to put on."

DATE AND PEANUT PASTE.
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)
Two cups stoned dates, one-half cup peanut butter, one-fourth cup confectioner's sugar, one-half teaspoon salt. Put dates through food chopper, add peanut butter and salt and work into paste. Roll into small balls, then cover with sugar and lay on plate to dry. The dates and peanut butter contain lime, iron and phosphorus, and I have no such mean traits as that. tablespoonfuls, or more. (Begin small amounts, increase gradually.)

Fruit, one to three tablespoonfuls, fresh (scraped) or stewed. If stewed, very little sugar. 6 p. m.—Cereal, same amount as getting at 10 a. m., followed by nursing or bottle. Add a little milk on cereal. No sugar (omit nursing by third week of the ninth month).

How to Achieve Beauty

The Intimacy of Your Home Calls for Dainty and Conservative Make-up

Very few women like to face themselves in the mirror when they first wake up in the morning. Color has disappeared, and all the fine lines and wrinkles show up. But my advice to women is to keep close tab on your morning reflection in the mirror, and use the kind of beauty regime that will insure you a complexion that you can be proud of when you first roll out of bed. Your "morning face" should teach you not to rely too much on make-up for your beauty. Pay a little more attention to your good looks at night so you will need less of the finishing touches to make you an attractive woman by early daylight.

But I have told you in former talks how to take care of your skin, whatever its type, to keep it attractive in itself, so I shall not go into that again here. Before you touch up your skin with a clearing, animating, beautifying skinfood that you can keep on while you take your bath or while you dress. Then a "finishing" or skin-toning lotion that will close the pores and leave a smooth flattering surface. Apply a little rouge-en-creme, working it in well with the fingertips, and being careful to blend the edges. Powder very lightly, being careful to use a shade that is at least one tone darker than your skin.

Use your lipstick sparingly. You can even touch up your lips with a little of that same rouge-en-creme that you used on your cheeks. If your lips seem dry or harsh, cream them well before you apply the lip rouge, being careful to remove the excess with a cleansing tissue. You will probably not want to use eye make-up for the intimacy of your own home. However, you should brush all the powder out of your brows and lashes with a little brush made especially for the purpose. Then shape your brows with your fingers.

I know of a woman whose make-up in her own home was so subtle that her husband never knew she used it. She applied liquid rouge. However, I do not advise that type of rouge, as it is none too good for the skin. Just as natural an effect can be obtained with rouge-en-creme in a subtle natural tone such as red raspberry shade, or if you are a blonde, in a lighter shade such as geranium.

In tomorrow's talk I am going to discuss "Make-up for Your Morning Sports Shopping."

A FRIEND INDEED

"The 'black bird' of the family!" There was something about this last remark of Screech Owl's that made Crow angry.

"Don't say that again," cawed he. "I am a 'black bird' myself and I have no such mean traits as that. But I am glad you recognize me. I hoped you would. You needn't worry any longer about starving to death, for I will see to it that you have a few crumbs to eat every day this winter!"

"Then you are a friend in time of need," saved the Crow in tones of great joy. "How pleased my wife will be when I tell her. She has been worrying herself sick. In fact, she was too ill to come out with me this morning and I miss her company. It is not once in a moon's age that we are separated, even on a fly."

"Tcherr-whieu!" wailed Screech Owl suddenly, and both the bird and boy jumped. "It makes me feel so sad to hear you talk about your wife. I shall have to roost here all alone for another month or so. No lady Owl will pay any attention to me until the cold weather is nearly over. I do want a mate so badly. Tcherr-whieu! Tcherr-whieu! Oh, what a lonely bird I am!"

of the garden yesterday?" asked he. "You look very much like him except you are tiny and he was big."

"I am the Two-Legs you mean," laughed Peter. "I am little on purpose now, you know, but I am liable to grow large again at any time. I am glad you recognize me. I hoped you would. You needn't worry any longer about starving to death, for I will see to it that you have a few crumbs to eat every day this winter!"

St. Brigid Quintet Loses To St. Joseph

LOCALS FIGHT ABLY BUT ACCEPT FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON

Ernst Thrills Fans With Accuracy Of His Shots

ST. JOSEPH High School of Springfield came, saw, and conquered the St. Brigid High School basketball team in a thrilling game, saw, and conquered the St. Brigid High School basketball team in a thrilling game, saw, and conquered the St. Brigid High School basketball team in a thrilling game.

Play was fast throughout and St. Brigid fought a game, uphill battle all the way. Although never once in the lead during the contest, the Xenia team, nevertheless, was always within striking distance and kept trying.

St. Joseph led 3 to 0 the first quarter. St. Brigid rallied somewhat in the second period but trailed 11 to 6 at the half. Gaining confidence as the game progressed, the locals played the visitors on even terms in the third stanza, the end of which found the Reaper City leads leading 15 to 10.

Speaking of basketball players, which is exactly what we are here to speak of, St. Brigid's star right forward, Ernest, deserved a medal for marksmanship in Tuesday's encounter. Ernst registered four baskets, many of them from mid-floor, and one foul for nine points to be high scorer of the game.

He was practically a whole team himself and his beautiful finish from distant regions kept St. Brigid in the running. Harrington was St. Joseph's star offensive man with eight points.

The contest started off slowly and it was six minutes before McClean opened the scoring with a free throw for Springfield. Toben sank a long basket as the first quarter ended.

As the second period got under way, Combs broke the ice for St. Brigid with a foul. Harrington countered for St. Joseph with a neat fielder. McClean and Harrington then registered long baskets in quick succession to give the visitors a 9 to 1 advantage.

Ernst, a minute later swished the net from the side of the court for the locals. This basket was neutralized by Harrington's third basket of the quarter. Captain Killen made good a "stucker" shot and Davis looped in a foul as the half ended.

As the third quarter opened, St. Joseph's spurted, reducing St. Brigid's margin to one point on two beautiful baskets by the accurate-shooting Ernst. Ernst first registered from the center of the court and duplicated on his next attempt, a shot which was not allowed. Undeterred, Ernst got the ball a second later and sank a long basket from practically the same spot.

Baskets by Captain Mahoney and Toben increased St. Joseph's advantage to five points once more as the period ended.

St. Brigid began a desperate struggle in the fourth quarter against impending defeat, increasingly hard to realize the nearer it approached. Harrington and Tucker scored baskets to give St. Joseph a lead of 19 to 10.

Joseph then began "freezing" the ball, a maneuver which met with some success. Ernst, however, managed to work through the defense for a nice basket and followed with a foul as the game came to a conclusion.

Outstanding floor games were played by Captain Killen, Davis and D. Donovan. The latter played an exceptional defense game and prevented the visitors from obtaining many "close-in" shots. Captain Mahoney and McClean, particularly McClean, played good floor games for St. Joseph.

The loss places St. Brigid on an even keel with the percentage column this season, one game won and as many lost. Lineups and summary:

WILL BE SPEAKER

O. E. Bradfute, Xenia, former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and other speakers are scheduled on the program of the annual meeting of the Xenia Twp. Farm Bureau, at the Christ Episcopal Church Parish House, Thursday night, January 19.

A covered dish dinner will be served at 6:30, followed by a program of music, election of officers and educational talks. Mrs. Elmer Hetsel is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

CRITERION MOVED; WOOLWORTH ROOM IS BEING REMODELED

With the Criterion clothing store, S. Detroit St., doing business in its new location, workmen have begun dismantling the room formerly occupied by the clothing store for expansion of the F. W. Woolworth Co., five and ten cent store.

A temporary partition was installed along the north wall of the present room occupied by the five and ten cent store, to permit workmen to tear out the intervening wall. Both rooms will be thrown into one, an entirely new front installed across the double-room store, and the Woolworth Co., will add additional features to its departments that the increased space will permit.

All of the changes involve buildings owned by R. S. Kingsbury. The Criterion, in changing locations, moved from one building owned by Mr. Kingsbury to another room, two doors south of the former location. The new room is in another Kingsbury-owned building and was occupied by the Flynn Bldg., and became the Recreation Hall.

The new clothing room was handsomely decorated for the Criterion, and a new and attractive front installed. It is of slightly larger dimensions than the former room and allows for additional features which permit a better display of stock. The removal was made without a cessation of business.

VESPER ROSELL MAY RECOVER FROM SHOT SELF-INFLICTED

Fighting gamely for life, Vesper Rosell, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rosell, Ludlow Road, junior student at Beaver High School, was "holding her own" Wednesday at McCrellan Hospital, with a bullet wound through her head, self-inflicted early Monday morning.

Because the girl is clinging to the slender thread of life, physicians say there is hope for her recovery. If she does live, however, she will never see again, because the 22 calibre rifle bullet punctured the optic nerves.

The girl's motive in the act remains a mystery. Contents of the note the girl is said to have left for her mother, have been guarded by the family.

Raymond Durnbaugh, 24, Dayton Pike, sweetheart of the girl, is a constant visitor to her bedside and with physicians and relatives has attempted to obtain a coherent statement from the girl as to her reason for self-destruction. She apparently understands their questions but has not spoken since Monday night.

Outstanding floor games were played by Captain Killen, Davis and D. Donovan. The latter played an exceptional defense game and prevented the visitors from obtaining many "close-in" shots. Captain Mahoney and McClean, particularly McClean, played good floor games for St. Joseph.

VALUE OF ORGANIZATION URGED AT COUNTY FARM BUREAU MEET

The need of a complete organization and co-operation among farmers, was emphasized by both P. O. Wilson, manager, Cincinnati Co-operative Livestock Producers' Commission Association and C. A. Dyer, legislative agent, Columbus.

Mr. Wilson traced the growth of the Cincinnati commission association during the past three years, during which it showed a profit of $85,000. He urged the farmers to pledge their loyalty to their own associations and give the fullest co-operation.

Mrs. L. H. Jones, Miami Twp., Mrs. Elmer Hetsel, Xenia Twp., and Mrs. R. B. McKay, Cassatwp. Twp., were chosen women directors of the Greene County Farm Bureau. The directors will meet next Saturday afternoon to elect officers of the organization.

A report of the livestock and service companies of the county was given by A. A. Conklin, at the afternoon session. Other reports were given and with miscellaneous business and music, completed the program.

HOW CAN WOMEN KEEP WELL ENOUGH TO GET UP SINGING?

"My mother-in-law," says Mrs. Belle Thompson, 3101 E. 44th St., East Lake, Tenn., "told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children, and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."

Another Happy Woman
"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. JESSIE BOLLEMAN, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

EXPANSION PLANNED

Expansion of both the educational and economic work of the farm bureau organization in a state-wide way is planned for the coming year, according to word received here by President W. W. Anderson of the Greene County Farm Bureau from L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. Plans for this expansion were made recently by the executive committee of the organization.

Two distinct lines of work will be carried forward according to the announcement received here, although both will be correlated into one program of organized effort. All civic, social and educational activities, including legislation, co-operation with the agricultural extension service and other educational agencies, and home and community work will be carried forward by the Federation and supported by membership dues. This branch of the work will be under the direction of President Palmer.

All commercial or economic activities including cooperative marketing, purchasing, insurance, auditing, financing, and management will be carried through the Ohio Farm Bureau Corporation, a subsidiary business unit, owned by farmers of the state and controlled through directors elected to the Federation by its farmer members. Administration of these activities will be in charge of executive secretary Murray D. Lincoln, says Palmer's statement.

In line with expansion of the educational activities, Mr. Palmer says that a home and community department will be established as soon as possible.

Plans for operation the coming year were made in consideration of the growth of the organization and the demands being made upon it, according to the statement. Educational demands are increasing, and commercial agencies of the bureau now handle more than $25,000,000 worth of commodities annually.

ADVERTISING PAYS DAYTON AD WRITER TELLS KIWANISANS

That "it pays to advertise" was proven by Robert Collett, Dayton of the Horner J. Lytle Co., advertising experts, that city, who gave an advertising talk before the Xenia Kiwanis Club, at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening.

"Advertisers can't sit back, fire their help, and expect advertising to enact miracles," he told the club. "Successful advertising takes a real product, put out by a good factory, with efficient selling and advertising."

"If you would buy a $5,000 page in the Ladies Home Journal, and reach 2,000,000 and possibly 6,000,000 people the same advertisement sent out through the mails would cost you $600,000. This sum would not pay for your postage or advertising."

Mr. Collett illustrated his talk with charts and samples of poor and good display advertisements.

W. E. Beeler, advertising manager of THE GAZETTE and Louis Hammerle, principal of Central High School, were guests at the meeting. Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall was welcomed as a new member, by the Rev. W. N. Shank, chairman of the education committee.

Dr. E. A. Kern, James D. Adair, J. T. Charters and E. H. Heathman were appointed members of the ways and means committee, taking the place of the "show committee" in obtaining finances for the club.

Secretary T. H. Zell submitted his annual report.

ARCH FIEND ADMITS TWO OTHER ATTACKS IN LAST TWO YEARS

The governor had previously said:

"I do not believe there are enough police in Michigan to protect Hotelling if he is returned to Flint."

Hotelling's physique, with its long arms, stooping shoulders and squat body, and his agility acquired from years of climbing scaffolding as a carpenter, tally with the description current at the time the "ape man" was on his rampage.

The "ape man" went about at night, peering into women's bedroom windows. When the women discovered him, and screamed hysterically, he cackled a maniacal laugh.

Hotelling's attorney, William A. Siegmiller, is on his way to Flint to appear before Judge Fred Brennan and ask that Hotelling be granted a change of venue because he cannot obtain a fair trial in Genesee County. There is no notion that a trial will be needed. Although the attacker of little girls stood mute yesterday at his secret roadside arraignment, he is said to be resigned now to a plea of guilty. While he waits and his lawyer prepares to plead in his behalf, his shame-stricken wife, Myrtle, is preparing to bring the children for what will probably be their last meeting with their father. The son, Devere, 16, an assistant scoutmaster at Owosso, has already visited his father in prison.

The state and Hotelling's own counsel are bending every effort to have the Hotelling case ended and the prisoner on his way to what will certainly be life imprisonment, probably in Marquette, before night. Whether they succeed depends upon the time required to prepare the necessary papers and obtain a change of venue.

Hotelling's confession of crimes against little girls in 1926 and 1927 was obtained by G. P. Lawcock, sheriff, and J. A. Fink, under-sheriff of Shiawassee county. Hotelling sat with his head in his hands, sobbing and moaning as he verified the suspicion of the officers.

His calm demeanor had broken down when he was taken to the Owosso Church of Christ and to officiate at a communion service on the third day after he had committed perhaps the most revolting crime in Michigan's history.

He had broken down completely after the visit of his son at the Owosso and sheriff's deputies had to grip him firmly to prevent him from falling as he collapsed in despair on the secret trip through Owosso, his home town on the way to the Genesee "hidden" arraignment.

The officers did not dare stop even in a small town to go through this necessary legal formality. They had turned off Trunk Line 21 just east of the Genesee County line and entered the village of Lennon. The fact that there were a number of people on the street prevented them from holding the arraignment there.

Finally their cars drew up on a lawn by the side of the road, at the residence of Peter B. Lennon's farm, and the formal arraignment was carried out while the prisoner sat in the curtained automobile that had carried him there. Technically, he stood mute when the charge against him was read. Actually, he sat silent in the rear seat of the automobile.

A technical not guilty plea was entered in the case, and he was remanded to the Genesee court for trial. But this, too, is a technicality, devised in order that there might be a case to transfer to some other circuit.

The arraignment was before Frank W. Kane, justice of the peace of Flint. Besides Hotelling and his attorney, there were present Commissioner Oscar G. Olender, of the department of public safety; Capt. Richard Elliott, of the state police; Frank Green, Genesee sheriff, and Will Roberts, Genesee prosecutor.

The party made its way from Ionia to Lennon by back roads, the two cars keeping a considerable distance apart and Hotelling being screened from view of those on the roads. The car carrying the prisoner was delayed at the roadside once by a flat tire but the prisoner was not recognized throughout the trip from Ionia to Genesee County and back.

Yellow Springs

The Library Club met at the home of Mrs. S. F. Weston on Xenia Ave., Monday afternoon. The election of officers for the new year was held at this meeting. President, Mrs. A. C. Swinnerton; vice-president, Mrs. W. C. Lacey; secretary, Miss Mamie Baker; treasurer, Miss May Garrison. Two trustees were elected, Mrs. Charles Carr and Miss Garrison.

Wednesday was an exciting day in our little village, when the town was filled with strangers offering bids from firms all over the state for the installation of the new water works system.

The Board of Trustees of Public Affairs received twenty-seven bids. The only part of the contract let was the pump house unit which was let to the Elcon Co. of Columbus. Their bid was $7,934.

Charles Carr died of typhoid fever Saturday evening at 9 o'clock after an illness of five weeks. He spent all his life in Yellow Springs. At the time he was taken ill he was employed as electrician at the Wilbur Wright aviation field at Fairfield. He is survived by his father, W. W. Carr of Carr's Nursery, his wife, Mrs. Edna Garrison Carr and three daughters, Mrs. Lynn Northup of New Moorefield.

Mr. Al Zeiner has been in Dayton, visiting with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flamm.

ADVERTISING PAYS DAYTON AD WRITER TELLS KIWANIS

That "it pays to advertise" was proven by Robert Collett, Dayton, of the Horace J. Lytle Co., advertising agents, that city, who gave an advertising talk before the Xenia Kiwanis Club, at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening.

"Advertisers can't sit back, fire their help, and expect advertising to enact miracles," he told the club. "Successful advertising takes a real product, put out by a good factory, with efficient selling and advertising."

"If you would buy a $6,000 page in the Ladies Home Journal, and reach 3,000,000 and possibly 6,000,000 people the same advertisement sent out through the mails would cost you $600,000. This sum would not pay for your postage or advertising."

Mr. Collett illustrated his talk with charts and samples of poor and good display advertisements.

W. E. Beeler, advertising manager of THE GAZETTE and Louis Hammerle, principal of Central High School, were guests at the meeting. Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall was welcomed as a new member by the Rev. W. N. Shank, chairman of the education committee.

Dr. E. A. Kern, James D. Adair, J. T. Charters and E. H. Heathman were appointed members of the ways and means committee, taking the place of the "show committee" in obtaining finances for the club. Secretary T. H. Zell submitted his annual report.

SMALL JUDGMENTS RETURNED BY JURY AFTER JOINT TRIAL

Verdict for damages totalling $219.30 was returned against Frank Wilson by a jury in Common Pleas Court Tuesday afternoon in two damage actions brought as a result of an auto collision last August 1 one-half mile west of Bellbrook. The two suits were heard jointly. In the $500 damage action brought by Harry Watson on behalf of his son, Harry Watson, Jr., 11, the jury awarded $100. An award of $119.30 damages was made in the $165 action filed by Watson for damage to his automobile and a $15 doctor's bill incurred by his son.

The jury deliberated about an hour and fifteen minutes, reporting at 2:45 p. m. The trial was begun Tuesday morning. Three damage suits were originally filed by the Watson family against Wilson. The first, filed by Prudence M. Watson, wife of Harry Watson, asked $1,000 damages for personal injuries sustained in the accident. A jury awarded her $200. As a result, the Watson family has obtained total damages of $419.30 against Wilson, whereas aggregate damages of $1,665 were sought.

All twelve jurors signed the verdict returned in favor of the son while but ten jurors concurred in the favorable verdict for the father.

Plaintiffs claimed Mrs. Watson and her son were so severely cut about the face in the accident, they received scars which will disfigure them for life.

Marshall and Marshall were attorneys for the Watson family. The jury was composed of S. H. Pierce, F. G. Collins, C. D. Myers, Harriet Routledge, Nellie Hartley, Alice Stewart, Bertha Hutchinson, Francis Grant, Emma G. McCalmont, W. J. Fuzate, Howard Putz and William Sutton.

OFFERS CONTROL OF WEATHER

TOLEDO, O.—W. S. Currier, of the Toledo government weather station, has received a letter from a man urging him to permit him to demonstrate his ability to control Toledo weather. "I would like to show you people what I can do by reason of my divine right," the man writes. "Last winter I sent back nineteen snows in Detroit. This winter eleven snows so far. But what I want to do is to sell this ability." Mr. Currier so far has failed to summon this self-styled controller of "fair and warmer."

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLONE GIBSON
WOMAN'S ABILITY AND REMUNERATION

The other day a magazine, which at this late date of equality between the sexes is always giving little slabs at women's ability, said: "It is a bit tedious to say of woman that she can do nothing without bringing the personal element into it. Whether this is temperamentally true or not, woman knows best. But the fact can hardly be disputed when one sees the average woman in charge of a meeting, that she is not likely to be far from consistently dispassionate. And yet, if women are to continue as presiding officers of meetings—as no doubt they will, increasingly—they must begin to learn that a chairman is one who recognizes always the difference between any views which may be expressed in debate and the personality of the speaker who expresses them. Heads beautifully doesn't it!"

ment into everything just as men do.

The truth of the matter is that some women have the genius of dispassionate selection, but others have just as many personal prejudices as men.

It is this constant and gratuitous advice with its thinly covered assumption of sex inferiority that seems insulting to the women who do so much of the world's work today.

While on this subject of men-written editorials for women only, it might not be out of place to refer to another one in the same issue of the magazine in question.

In speaking of working without wages it says: "A great part of the substantial work of life is done without payment of wages. Is it the service of the trustees of schools and hospitals, of directors of charities and settlements, of officers of societies, of teachers in Sunday schools, of volunteers in the activities in the churches that show how extensive and how necessary is this unpaid work."

"No community can get along without it. Its existence and efficiency are encouraging facts in a civilization which some people consider hopelessly selfish. It shows that self-sacrifice is a permanent part of life."

Again the philosophic and erudite gentleman has left out the real hub of argument. Think of the
